STEPS TO AID DISABLED MEN IN BRITAIN URGED

London, Sept. 2.—(Canadian Press Cable)—The report of the select committee of the Government which is considering the question of the employment of disabled ex-service men recommends that a final effort be made on a voluntary basis to deal satisfactorily with the matter. This means that local committees should take it in hand, these committees have certain limited statutory powers and having a central statutory body composed of representatives of Parliament, Government departments, employers and trade unions. Failing a solution of the problem by May, 1923, the select committee recommends that recourse be had to a form of compulsion.

The total number of disabled ex-service men receiving disability pensions is 900,000.

NEW ACT AIMS AT EXPORT LIQUOR HOUSES; STOCK SEIZED, SALES AT GOVERNMENT STORES INCREASE; DISTRIBUTE RACE MONEY; NEW APPOINTMENTS

Legal experts of the Attorney-General's Department are carrying on investigations now to find out whether British Columbia can avail itself of new powers to check the export of liquor from bonded warehouses. When provinces avail themselves of the legislation known as the McKenzie Bill, enacted at the last session of Parliament, the right of export of any liquor will be limited to distillers and brewers. The operative provision of the Act will not be effective until there is a proclamation by the Federal Government, and this is contingent upon provincial orders-in-council asking for such action. Officials of the Attorney-General's Department have not reached a conclusion on this matter, but off-hand they think that the McKenzie Bill applies only to "dry" provinces.

Liquor export companies are not having a very easy time these days. As a result of seizures of stocks of export houses in Fernie a few weeks ago sales of liquor in Government stores at Fernie and at Michel, not far away, have increased from 100 to 200 per cent. Liquor Control Board officials assert that export companies are selling liquor to bootleggers, and when their activities were curbed, people started to buy their liquor from Government stores instead of illicit vendors.

Money collected by the Provincial Government from taxation of participation operations will be distributed to British Columbia municipalities by the Provincial Department of Finance. The department is holding up distribution until racing is over for the season.

A special warrant granting $15,000 to carry on the work of the Boys' Industrial School has been signed by the Administrator.

New Provincial appointments announced today are: J. J. Needham, of Fort Alice, to be Justice of the Peace; Dr. J. P. Saunders, to be a coroner; E. D. Macfarlane, to be a liquor vendor at Vancouver; A. J. Greig, to be an attempt to derail a train at Vancouver; R. C. McCorder, to be Deputy Mining Recorder for Omineca Mining Division, and H. G. Hill, to be Deputy Mining Recorder at Bella Coola.

Orders-in-council signed by the Administrator from taxation of participation operations will be distributed to British Columbia municipalities by the Provincial Department of Finance. The department is holding up distribution until racing is over for the season.

Sproat Lake's New Attraction

For years Sproat Lake has been a great fishing centre, but its reputation in that line is being dwarfed by the new discovery. A big black bear has taken possession of an island in Two Arms Inlet. He appears to be in a semi-tame state and is only too ready to oblige photographers provided they in return toss him something to eat. The above picture was taken by Walter McKicking, electrician for the Victoria Fire Department, who says he got close enough to brush his hand with him but restrained himself after taking two looks at the bear.

Never before have visitors to the market had the opportunity to buy fruit for preserving or storing at such a low price as the quotations offered on apples, pears and plums. Apples were selling at a lower price today than previously this season. Eight pounds for 25 cents was the figure offered, while plums were being picked up at ten cents a pound, which indicates that the market is glutted with this fruit, otherwise the price would not be so low. Pears of all grades were displayed at the market but the Bartlett's were by far the most popular.

A feature of the fruit was the big display made by strawberry growers who were selling their "evebearing" fruit at a ridiculously low price of 2 pounds for 35 cents. The berries are large, the quality good with good color which made the buying popular.

Now is the chance for the housewife to pull down a few more of her preserving jars. Pickling tomatoes are down to the lowest point they can ever be expected to reach, "unless we give them away," stated one stallholder. Ten pounds for this fruit was the price at which this commodity was being picked up. This season again. The first lot of this fruit was exhibited on the market today at 10 cents a root, and was soon cleaned up.

Meats were much the same, the quotations ranging as follows: lamb, 20 to 25 cents; beef, 10 to 20 cents; pork, 15 to 20 cents.

EXTENDED TIME FOR PACKERS' SALES

Washington, Sept. 2.—The Supreme Court of the District of Columbia today granted a request of Armour & Co., for another extension of the time permitted to dispose of the company's interest in firms and corporations not allied to the meat industry. The company and the individuals comprising the Armour group are given until May 1, 1923, to sell such interests. A previous extension had expired August 27.

Counsel for the company satisfied the court that the financial condition of the country had militated against disposal of the subsidiary properties, and that although they had been duly diligent they had been unable to sell certain grocery and other interests.

The original order of divestment, which was in the form of a consent decree, was signed February 27, 1920, and set the time limit as two years.

BIG NICKEL PLANT OPERATES AGAIN

650 Men at Copper Cliff, Ont., Put Back at Work

Sudbury, Ont., Sept. 2.—The large plant of the International Nickel Company at Copper Cliff is operating after having been closed down for eighteen months. The company is operating at one-third of its wartime capacity, and preference was given to former employees in selecting of hands who started work yesterday. It is proposed to operate with 650 hands in an eight-hour shift.

Regular shipments will be made to the refinery at Port Colborne, where all of the refining will be done. The refined nickel will be shipped to the new $2,000,000 rolling mill at Huntington, Va., where it will be rolled into malleable metal and marketed mostly in the United States.

GERMANY HAS NEW POSTAGE STAMPS

Berlin, Sept. 2.—One of the last remaining symbols of the old regime in Germany will pass away with the withdrawal of all postage stamps of the familiar "Germania" type on October 31 next.

This design, first adopted in 1900, played a measurable part in fostering the militarist movement that brought disaster upon the Fatherland.

The original of the mail-clad figure of Germania was Fraulein Anna Fuhning, of the Imperial Opera, whose portrayal of the role so impressed the then Kaiser that he ordered her likeness to be placed upon the new postage stamps of the Empire.

Since the establishment of the Republic numerous protests have been lodged against the continuance of this design, and now that the new industrial series of stamps has been completed, instructions for its suppression have been issued.

COBALT MINE MAY ADD EQUIPMENT

Cobalt, Ont., Sept. 2.—Though present profits run better than 50 per cent of the capitalization at par, the developments underground lead to speculation as to a possible increase in the Dome Mine's surface plant, according to H. P. Dempsey, general manager.

He states that to increase the milling performance from 1,000 to 1,100 tons a day, would require not only extra equipment, but extra housing.

C.P.R. PASSENGER DEPARTMENT CHANGES

Winnipeg, Sept. 2.—Changes made in connection with the reorganization of the passenger department of the Canadian Pacific Railway include the following:

Mr. Snell, general passenger agent at Montreal, is transferred to Vancouver as general passenger agent.

George A. Walton, general passenger agent at Winnipeg, will succeed W. H. Snell as general passenger agent at Montreal.

Ralph G. McNeillie, now assistant general passenger agent at Winnipeg, is promoted to be general passenger agent at Winnipeg.

N. R. Desbrisay, now district passenger agent at St. John, N.B., is promoted to be assistant general passenger agent at Winnipeg.

FORT WILLIAM AND DULUTH RAILWAY

Americans Plan to Extend Duluth Line

Duluth, Minn., Sept. 2.—Formal announcement of the proposed purchase of the Duluth and Northern Minnesota Railroad and the creation of the Duluth and Ontario Railroad were made here today by Robert Waldron, of Minneapolis, a wealthy lumberman and former resident of Cook County. A $25,000 cheque will be filed Monday with John W. Bayless, receiver for the Duluth and Northern Minnesota Railroad, as the first payment for the purchase of the abandoned lines.

The Duluth and Northern Minnesota lines, extending 99 miles from the Knife River through Lake and into Cook County, will be used as a nucleus for the Duluth and Ontario road, running from Duluth to Fort William, a distance of 216 miles. Mr. Waldron will be president of the new company and will be associated with Duluth and Minneapolis men.

Decision to purchase the Duluth and Northern Minnesota Railroad and link it with a new line to Fort William from Duluth was made last night. At the meeting last night it was reported support would be secured from Lake and Cook County Minnesota business men. Assistance also might be obtained from the province of Ontario in the form of a land bonus which is said to have been offered to the officers of the Duluth and Northern eight years ago.

Mr. Waldron said today that at that time John Milne, president of the road, was offered 200,000 acres of land to extend the line to Fort William.

At Fort William, the Duluth and Ontario will connect with the Canadian National running into Port Arthur, making a through line from Duluth to the Canadian port cities.

DUCHESS OF ALBANY DIES ON CONTINENT

Aunt by Marriage of King George; Deprived of British Nobility in 1916

London, Sept. 2.—The Duchess of Albany died yesterday at Innsbruck, in the Tyrol, it was announced here today. The Duchess was visiting her son, the Duke of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha.

The late Duchess was born on February 17, 1851, and was of Royal birth, being Princess Helene Friederike Auguste, fourth daughter of the late Prince George Victor of Waldeck and Pyrmont. She was married at Windsor in 1882 to the late Duke of Albany, uncle of King George and youngest brother of the late King Edward. In 1916 the Duchess was deprived of British nobility owing to her German extraction. For some years she has been living alternately at her villa at Cannes and with her son, the Duke of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha. She is an aunt of Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands.

THRESHING

Thrashing is a general throughout the entire length and breadth of the prairie provinces, and thrashing in northern districts is generally from two to three weeks earlier than it has been for many years, the paper says. Labor up to the present has not been unduly short, and farmers are adhering very closely to the wage rates agreed on.

Never in the history of the prairies have the railways been in a better position to move the crop in the matter of cars. The Free Press says. Throughout the prairies on both systems every siding was full of cars before the middle of August, and early movement should be entirely satisfactory.

NEWS AND NOTES OF THE MINES

Sullivan Visits Mines.

Michael Sullivan, the well-known mining man of Spokane, has just returned from a tour of inspection of the Bayonne district. Primarily he is interested in the gold claims of W. McCreath and associates, but while in the district also went over the Bayonne group working, which he declares have opened up a very large tonnage, along the main vein, which has been proved for 2,500 feet.

Mr. Sullivan's mission is on behalf of southern capitalists, including Patsy Clark, who amassed a fortune out of Rossland mines in the early days and who has an interest in the Standard Silver Lead Corporation. Mr. Sullivan left yesterday for the Slovan for a flying inspection of properties, and is due next week in Idaho, but intends to return early and visit prospects in the Lardo country.

Chu Chua Mine.

Great activity is being occasioned at the Chu Chua coal mine, with the approach of the Fall season and the reorganization of the working forces there. C. E. Max, manager, states to The Standard-Sentinel that as time goes on a much more lively output will be seen and the present seam of coal will be taken out and then drilling for a heavier undertaken and pursued.

A new foreman is now in command underground. He is John Sutherland, formerly of the Western Fuel Co., Nanaimo, a man of long experience, whose knowledge of mining will be of large service to the company.

At the present time between twenty and thirty men are working and this number will be considerably increased when the demand for a larger production is occasioned with cold weather.

George C. Weatby, the company's engineer, arrived on the ground today, and will consult with Mr. Max as to future development in the light of latest orders from Seattle. The syndicate there, which is up to the moment in its large payments, the most recent of which, for a large sum was made last week, promises to concentrate greater action in the mine.

It is understood that the final cash payment will be made on October 1.

Cuticura Heals Itching Burning Pimples On Face

"My face was entirely covered with pimples which not only disfigured me but bothered me with itching and burning. They were large, hard and red, and after a while began to fester. They itched so that I had to scratch them which made the burning more intense."

"I used various salves and creams but they gave no relief. The trouble lasted for nearly three months until I heard of Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I sent for a free sample. In about a week a decided improvement was made so I bought more, and two cakes of Soap with one box of Ointment healed me." (Signed) Elmer V. Foss, 7 Ocean View Ave., East Lynn, Mass.

Short Season

The newspaper calls attention to the fact that the crop of 1922 has been produced in a shorter period of time than almost any crop in the history of the prairie provinces, in many districts not more than 102 days elapsing between seeding of wheat and cutting.

The season of 1922 emphasizes in a marked degree some of the wonderful recuperative powers of the prairie provinces. The Free Press says: "Over very large wheat areas in Saskatchewan, after an unduly delayed seeding, no general rain fell for ninety-nine days, and in spite of this on well cultivated lands already yields have been threshed that run from twenty-five to thirty bushels, though these, of course, are not general in these districts."

The paper calls attention to the recovery of a section of the province after a tremendous hail damage in June, and also to the reversal of moisture conditions.

GARDEN CROP PRIZES AWARDED

Competition in Metchosis; Preparations for Fall Fair

(Times Correspondence)

Metchosis.—A special meeting of the directors of the Metchosis Farmery Institute and the Fall Fair management committee was held at the home of H. R. Brown, last night.

The secretary, R. I. Vander Byl, gave a report on the results of the garden crop competition held in the district under the direction of the Institute. Mr. White, assistant Provincial Horticulturist, who judged the gardens, made his final inspection on August 23, and the following results were announced:

Wallace Pears, Metchosis, first with 76 points; P. Snider, Metchosis, second with 74 points; Geo. Ball, Rocky Point, third with 72 points; W. Hawkins, Metchosis, fourth with 70 points.

NEW COMMISSION FOR PALESTINE

Suggestion for Holy Places Laid Before League of Nations

Geneva, Sept. 2.—A commission to supervise the rights of the religious sects in the holy places of Palestine is provided for in the scheme of the Earl of Balfour, to be submitted to the Council of the League of Nations, in session here. The proposal does not conform to the request of the Vatican and this, it is expected, will cause considerable conflict in the Council.

The refusal of the United States Government to ratify the St. Germain convention for the restriction of private traffic in arms and ammunition was the principal subject of discussion at the headquarters of the League yesterday. From the talk the view seemed to be that the convention was regarded as dead.

CROP RETURNS INTEREST COUNTRY

Those Engaged in Trade Observe Favorable Prairie Conditions

Winnipeg, Sept. 2.—(Canadian Press).—The Canadian Credit Men's Trust Association's weekly trade report is, briefly, to the effect that general conditions are not unfavorable. One good feature in the extreme East is that around Halifax there is very little unemployment. In Quebec and Ontario manufacturers and wholesalers are finding a slight increase in business, though as regards the retail trade activities are a little on the slow side, but the expectation is that, with the end of the holiday season approaching retail conditions will become better.

As for the provinces West of the Great Lakes, the past week there seems to have been some little easing off in shipments amongst the wholesalers. Retail business in some lines is a little better, but in others it is quiet.

Money is moving a little more freely in the East than it is in the West. Just now every one's eyes are turned to the western crop, and as the weather has been fairly good this last week, the farmers have been busy.

VERIFYING 43% Cream

One of the prize-winners in our recent letter contest says that her husband has long been keenly interested in the matter of pure milk and has gone to considerable trouble to verify our statement that Pacific Milk contains 43 per cent of cream. We are glad to have users do this, or to investigate Pacific Milk in any manner they see fit, for the closer one examines conditions under which it is produced the more favorable their impression is found to be. Our factories at Ladner and Abbotsford are always open for inspection by the public.

THE LATE MR. KINGHAM.

Victoria in particular and British Columbia in general will mourn the passing of Mr. Joshua Kingham which took place at the family residence this morning.

For more than thirty years the late Mr. Kingham has been a resident of this city where he has been prominently identified with its commercial and social life. Although he was not a native of this country he was one of those who came to Canada in search of health and was ever grateful for the benefits which his adopted country showered upon him. During the course of the illness which has exacted its cruel penalty he has maintained a fortitude and patience that was typical of his demeanor through life.

It is not a simple task to write of the life of Mr. King-

ham. He was a man of so many parts and every one of those parts was filled with a thoroughness that instantly commanded the admiration of all those with whom he came into contact. Foremost among the role he played in the public life of Vancouver Island and of the Province as a whole was his relationship with the Victoria

Board of Trade. From the presiding officer of the organization in this city, in whose interests he labored with an unselfishness that symbolized his devotion to all progressive causes, he became the President of the Associated Boards of British Columbia—a striking tribute to his vision and indefatigable energy and devotion to the best interests of the Province of his adoption.

The late Mr. Kingham's interest in public affairs was equally effectively exemplified in his active support to the cause of Liberalism in this Province and its welfare in a national sense. For years he was the inspiring figure in the Victoria

Liberal Association and when he was not its periodical president he was always to be found in its inner councils directing and safeguarding those principles to which he devoted his political interest. Not alone were the late Mr. Kingham's activities devoted to those movements which are constantly in the public eye and in the public mind. He was counted one of the most popular and active supporters of the Pacific Club. Among its membership he numbered a roll of sterling friends who will mourn his death with more than ordinary sincerity.

Musical Victoria will remember Mr. Kingham's contribution to the Arion Club. He was one

THE MINER'S RISK.

Disasters like that which occurred at Cumberland this week will remind most people of the hazardous nature of the coal miner's calling. He goes down the shaft in the morning without any sort of guarantee that the humors of Nature or the carelessness of a fellow worker will not settle his fate before his shift has been completed. Even in the so-called safer mines,

under the most favorable of circumstances with every modern contrivance for producing the black diamonds, he is exposed to risks that are only really understood by himself. For these reasons alone it should be possible to suspend judgment on those occasions when he gets on his hind legs in good fresh air and asks for things which he considers he should be able to get. On the whole the miner is a good chap and a long-suffering sort of person, and if he takes what he believes to be a short cut to his own conception of his rights, without paying due and proper regard to the consequences to himself or the public at large, it is just as well to remember the nature of his task—and the periodical explosion that cannot be averted by arbitration.

HERTZOG BACKS DOWN?

After vain efforts to woo

Labor from its fixed intention to support the tie of Empire

General Hertzog has found a compromise upon which he will be able to conduct a joint campaign against Premier Smuts.

He has dropped the demand for a republic and Labor Leader

Creswell has agreed to forego his Party's demand for land tax.

This interesting little arrangement will now pave the way for a better organized effort to oust

the South African Party at the next general election.

Unless we are mistaken in various tributes to the sagacity of Colonel Creswell we shall expect him to keep the Nationalist leader in his place. From this distance concessions from the Hertzogites would be of the devoluting type unless there has been pointed references to this now historical precedent. In any case Creswell knows that many of his Party neglected their own candidates at the last election in order to insure a majority for loyalist sentiment.

Nothing has taken place in South Africa or any other part of the Empire to encourage a change in the attitude of the workingman.

"DOPED" LIQUOR.

In view of all the ridiculous charges that have been made in connection with British Columbia's method of dealing with the liquor problem the Attorney

General is fully justified in referring to Mr. Bowser's statement that the commodities pur-veyed at the official vending establishments are "doped." Very naturally Mr. Mansson's reply is merely a flat denial of the Opposition Leader's flippant observation. Either Mr. Bowser

is posing for the obvious effect that complete unfamiliarity with Scotland's bottled goods would imply, or he is following his favorite pastime of making state-

WOMAN IN BREECHES
HOLDS EXTRAORDINARY
VIEWS ON MARRIAGE

American Poetess and Heiress
Starts on World Crusade

London, Sept. 2.—If people tire of marriage and it makes them miserable, why should they not amicably agree to give it up?

This is the text of Miss Jane Burr, the American poetess and novelist, who, with breeches and a jumper as the sign of her independence, has arrived in London during a five-year world-crusade to convert everyone to her views.

Twice wedded, she has left her second husband, but does not seek a divorce. In fact, she has with her half of her money, royalties and farm to share with another male if he wants one.

When she inherits "a few million dollars" Miss Burr intends to adopt ten children.

Twice married, Miss Burr has just started on a five-year tour of the world to study marriage and marriage conditions, the future of marriage, the condition of women and that of children.

As a demonstration to women of foreign lands of the independence attained by American women, she has adopted knickerbockers, and was so garbed when she reached London.

Jane Burr is her non-de-plume, as she was born Guggenheim, and her parents named her Rosalind.

In ordinary life she would be Mrs. Morath, Winslow, but that does not matter, as she does not care for her husband, who is not "out of love" with her.

According to her own declaration, she has simply gone out of the marriage business.

Just a Few Million Dollars!

She was a conspicuous figure on the deck of the President Polk during the passage from America.

Clad in a vivid green jumper with riding breeches, grey stockings and saddle shoes, she looked the picture of health and happiness.

It was difficult to imagine she is nearly forty. She confessed to 39, and is determined to devote her life to converting the world to her views.

Engaged at sixteen, she was married at eighteen because she could not put up with the limitations and conventions of a luxurious home.

She belonged, she remarked, "to the poorer branch of the great smelting millionaires. We have only a few million dollars."

"When I say 'we' I mean my parents, but it is to come to me later. Then I shall have plenty of money for my schemes. Then I am going to adopt ten children. At present I can only afford one, and that is an orphan."

Talking about her matrimonial adventures, Miss Burr said it was quite strange that she divorced her first husband because he snored.

"He adored me," she said, "and gave me everything I wanted, but I was miserable."

Only Common Sense.

"Marriage is the only state you have to remain in if you don't like it," she added. "If your house does not suit you, you clear out and go to another."

"If you don't like your business or profession you quit it. If you do not like your friends you go away and make new ones."

"It is common sense, and I think the future of marriage depends on such an arrangement."

Miss Burr, although she does not live with her husband now, does not seek a divorce.

"I am quite satisfied as I am," she said. "He is a dear old thing, and I am quite fond of him. I don't mind mothering him, but I am out of the marriage business."

"I dedicated my last book to him. 'If I like I shall dedicate ten more to him. I have will half my money and half my royalty and half my farm to him. This he can share with his chosen mate if he takes one.'"

"Mrs. White was very late at church this morning," remarked one woman.

"Yes," returned the other, "I wonder why. She didn't have on anything new."—Boston Transcript.

VISITED HER SON'S
GRAVE AT YPRES

Mrs. Thomas Palmer Returns to Victoria After Sad Pilgrimage

After a pilgrimage to Ypres, where she visited the grave of her soldier son, Mrs. Thomas Palmer, widow of the late Deputy-Chief of Police, returned to Victoria yesterday. Mrs. Palmer has been away for three months, during which she visited friends in various parts of England in addition to her trip to France.

To a Times representative this morning Mrs. Palmer was warm in her commendation of the hospitable welcome and care made out to her by relatives during their sad pilgrimage by the Canadian Red Cross authorities in London. They undertook the arrangement of her passage to France, and on her arrival at Calais she was met by one of their officials and helped to find her train.

Again at her destination an official met her and accompanied her to the cemetery. Here in an isolated spot she found the grave of her son, Private Roy Palmer, who lost his life while serving with the 1st Battalion "Little Black Devils." A well-tended grave with its tribute of flowers bore evidence of the loving care of the kind-hearted residents of the neighborhood. Mrs. Palmer gained much comfort on learning for the first time that her boy met his death while voluntarily replacing a comrade on sentry duty.

She had brief glimpses of Sanctuary Wood, Ypres and Hill 60, and was amazed at the rapid reconstruction going on in these devastated areas, which still, however, retain their heart-rending scenes of desolation.

"Put and take," with the emphasis on the take, was Patricia Vane's idea of life. Patricia was a blonde New York society girl who had never known an honest emotion, except the longing for more excitement and thrills, until she became stranded off a little Maine seacoast town with the nearest railroad station fifteen miles distant.

Patricia had gone on a yachting party with a typical metropolitan gang. Off the Maine coast the engines broke down and it meant a seven day rest while they were being repaired. During that week Patricia met John Alden, young New Englander who owned his own fishing schooner and believed in the simple things of life.

Patricia took John on as her escort. He was a character she had never met before and intensely amusing in his quaint way, without intending to be so. To her it was just a frolic; but the boy took it all in deadly earnest.

Such is the situation that brings two opposing currents to a clash in "The Seventh Day," the picture starring Richard Barthelmess which will be shown for the last time today at the Royal Victoria Theatre. The part of John Alden is played by Richard Barthelmess, who is making his second appearance as a star, the first having been the remarkably successful "Stable Boy." Louise Huff plays the part of Patricia. The story is an original, written by Porter Emerson Browne, author of "The Bad Man," "A Fool There Was" and other stage successes. It was directed by Henry King.

The comedy end of the programme is well taken care of by Buster Keaton, the well-known comedian, who will be seen in his latest comedy "The Paleface." There is no doubt that this comedy will be as favorably commented on as was "The Boat," which was his latest picture to be shown in the city. The whole programme is light and is the right kind of entertainment for summer weather.

CAPITOL

Mae Murray believes that jazz and dancing provides the "pep" that persons who are indoors a greater part of the day need. Miss Murray is herself a dancer of note, and was a star in Ziegfeld's Follies before she entered motion pictures. In her new Metro picture, "Fascination," presented by Robert Z. Leonard, which is now running at the Capitol Theatre, the popular star introduces a number of new dances.

"Jazz and dancing are twins for most of us, anyhow," says Miss Murray. "They may criticize jazz music as 'savage' and everything else, but the fact remains that it stirs something inside of you that makes you feel like dancing. It sort of 'peps' you all up and makes you feel good. Suppose one has been sitting in an office all day long, don't you think it's a good thing if one can get in half an hour of jazz at the end of the day? I do. It's a good thing to get your body into motion, with every muscle in play. It's a good thing to get your toes twinkling, to get your legs in action. It means a release of energies—a sort of intoxication, if you will, but an intoxication that means health and happiness.

"I should think everyone would feel it. But I know there are those who think dancing is wicked, just as there are those who think jazz wicked. And now I suppose you will frown upon the intoxication of the enjoyment of nature, just as they have frowned upon these other things. But while I have breath, I will always be fighting for jazz and dancing."

THE PLAYHOUSE

To-night will be the last performance of the exceedingly successful Playhouse Show number two. There have been almost capacity houses at each of the nine performances, and one and all have acclaimed the show one of the best ever staged in Victoria. Victoria is fortunate in having such exceptional talent available, and the entertainment provided at this popular house are proving a great source of delight to the large number of patrons. The singing of the musical melodies, some twenty-five in number, is exceedingly good. There has been a large advance sale for to-night's show, and those wishing to attend will be well advised to book their seats in advance. Reserved seats cannot be held after 7.30 on Saturday night, owing to the big rush for seats. The curtain will rise at 8.30 sharp.

If you had curly hair that was worth twenty thousand dollars a curl and somebody cut off a ringlet by mistake, what would you do?
Mary Pickford has the most extensive and expensive collection of curls in the world. During the filming of "Little Lord Fauntleroy," her brother, Jack, who with Alfred E. Green, directed this picture, accidentally cut off one of Mary's twenty thousand dollar curls.
It happened thusly: As "Little Lord Fauntleroy," Miss Pickford is supposed to have her hair cut, the little Lord, it seems, had always objected very much to his curls. He wanted his hair cut short like other

ENTERTAINMENT WEEK IS SET

Second Season at Capitol Theatre to Begin Monday

It is with great pleasure that Manager Robertson of the Capitol Theatre owned and operated by Famous Players Canadian Corporation Limited with head offices in Toronto, and theatres in every Canadian city from coast to coast, announces to his patrons the second season of Capitol entertainment, at the Capitol Theatre.

Last year the idea was new, the original scheme of N. L. Nathanson, one of the recognized authorities in the moving picture world in America, and managing-director of the big corporation owning this chain of moving picture houses. So successful was last year's effort, so fine the programme in all Capitol Theatres, and especially in Victoria, that it has been deemed advisable by Mr. Nathanson to inaugurate a second season of this entertainment, and September 4 to September 9 are the dates selected for Capitol entertainment week.

Paramount pictures, fine incidental music, artistic presentations, raise the bill offered at the Capitol Theatre to the standard of the highest class amusement to be had anywhere, at the lowest price consistent with the value of the entertainment.

The company's policy is always to please, to bring the artistic achievements of the world's master producers, the works of the best musicians, to the small cities and towns as soon as possible after they have been seen in large centres. The value of this, as an educational asset, as a broadening influence in the lives of the general public—is becoming more and more recognized as a powerful factor of modern life. There will always be small towns—there must always be—where no such thing as isolated districts with people who are unable to travel, will lead to a monotonous, soul-deadening existence devoid of pleasure or amusement.

Through establishing beautiful Capitol Theatres, in all the large cities of Canada, as well as houses in every available locality, Famous Players Canadian Corporation Limited, has assisted the motor salesman, the Ford manufacturer and other agents in bringing Capitol entertainment even into the rural districts. The farmer and the hired man as well as the comfortable resident of the small cities and towns, can spend an evening at any of the company's playhouses, and for an inconsiderable sum watch the screen versions of the world's greatest novels, the efforts of famous artists, and listen to music of the highest order.

Paramount pictures are what the word Paramount means—there is nothing better—so to convince you that this year as well as last, you may have the best amusement in the world.

Mr. Robertson has selected for the week of September 4 the great European spectacle, "The Loves of Pharaoh," played by Miss Swanson, which would be, and is, mortals like himself and herself were just scattered leaves, like barques floating down a current where were mostly rocks ahead."

Later on in the story, Theodora writes to Hector (played by Rudolph Valentino) and in the course of her letter says: "And, oh, we must not grieve! We must thank fate for giving us this deep into Paradise—and we must try and find the angel to steer our barques for us beyond the rocks."

This new Paramount picture will be shown at the Columbia Theatre next Monday to Wednesday inclusive. A strong supporting cast has been provided.

DOMINION

It is now generally acknowledged that the eminent author as a maker of moving pictures is far from being a success. The author-director is out-classing him for the simple reason: that he is more adapted to the new art. A writer works with the more mechanical medium of words, a director works with pictures. The author thinks in words, the director thinks in pictures and hence his greater success.

In the Owen Moore picture, "Reported Missing," Henry Lehman has clearly demonstrated the superiority of the author-director and has vividly shown the marvelous results which can be obtained by a man who has the picture mind. "Reported Missing," a Selznick picture, is announced as the attraction at the Dominion Theatre all this week.

SECOND SEASON OF Capitol Entertainment

OPENS IN THE LEADING THEATRES OF CANADA MONDAY SEPTEMBER 4

One Year Ago and—TO-DAY

ONE YEAR ago, the Famous Players Canadian Corporation, Limited, owners of the finest theatres in Canada, introduced a new diversion—entertainment known as Capitol Entertainment. It was announced that this modern amusement would be a happy combination of the best photoplays, music and, frequently, stage novelties.

AND IT WAS stressed that wherever Capitol Entertainment was presented, the prices of admission would be no higher than necessary to provide this particular kind of programme.

THE IDEA instantly struck a popular chord. From Montreal to Vancouver, thousands of people in the leading cities of Canada, flocked to the theatres where Capitol Entertainment had been advertised. These "first nighters" were impressed with the picture attempt of the big theatre enterprise to present 100 per cent entertainment at popular prices.

CAPITOL Entertainment became a household phrase almost over night and to-day theatre-going legends throughout Canada will attest to the fact that wherever you find Capitol Entertainment, you will find the best show in town in the finest theatre in town.

Capitol Entertainment is presented in Victoria at the Capitol Theatre, where an exceptional programme has been arranged for this week.

MONDAY, September 4, will bring the opening of the second season of Capitol Entertainment—a season of forty weeks—during which the greatest motion pictures ever made will be exhibited. These wonder photoplays are the finest productions released under the Paramount banner and by the big Canadian distributing organization, Regal Films, Limited.

AMONG the well-known stars who will be seen in these productions are Harold Lloyd, Rodolph Valentino, Thomas Meighan, Wallace Reid, Conrad Nagel, Jack Holt, Theodore Roberts, Bert Lytell, Theodore Kosloff, Gloria Swanson, Dickson, Debe Daniels, Betty Compson, Dorothy Dalton, Mae Murray, Agnes Ayres, Clara Kimball Young, Ethel Clayton and Pauline Frederick. The foremost writers of the world will provide the stories for these pictures. Geniuses such as Cecil B. De Mille and Rex Ingram will personally supervise their production.

ALLEGED STABBING FOLLOWED ROW OF LONGSHOREMEN

William Roach in Jubilee Hospital With Knife Wound

John Handley in Custody Charged With Stabbing

Starting in Cabin 15 on Johnson Street, tenanted by William Roach, otherwise known to his longshoremen friends as "The Silver Tip" and the "Chinese Kid," a row that led Roach to hospital with knife wound in the abdomen and John Handley to jail broke out at 5:25 p. m., yesterday afternoon.

Roach is 40 years of age, and powerfully built, while John Handley is 55 years of age.

The first the police heard of the affair was a hurry up call from Constable Littlefield who wanted the patrol wagon in a rush. Constable Burnett attended with the patrol, but in the meantime Chief Fry had run from the station to the Roach cabin which is directly opposite a liquor vendor's store. When Chief Fry arrived Handley was stretched out on the pavement with the main features of his countenance obliterated by a pummeling he received in the argument.

Roach was wandering around inside the cabin only beginning to realize that he had been stabbed. Handley was taken to the police station and booked on a charge of malicious wounding with intent to do grievously bodily harm, and Roach was removed to the Jubilee Hospital, where one hour later Dr. Vye reported him to be suffering from a puncture of the abdominal cavity by means of a knife or other sharp instrument.

How Trouble Began.

Roach was wounded some two inches below the centre of the abdomen and slightly to the left side of the body. The gash appeared to be one straight cut with a knife, the wound being some inches deep, but fairly clean.

Roach is reported to have passed a bad night at the hospital and his condition is causing a good deal of alarm.

The fight appears to have started in the Roach cabin, where Handley and Roach had been drinking heavily yesterday afternoon. A third man was present, but his name was not given, but told the police he was asleep and entirely missed the fight. Roach and Handley fought beer and whisky at the Government Vendic store across the street from the cabin earlier in the afternoon, and were under the influence of liquor, it was alleged.

After sparring for some time in the cabin the two principals struggled on to the sidewalk in front where the fight was renewed, with results stated above.

In Court To-day.

In the city police court to-day Handley appeared in the dock with his face greatly disfigured. The right eye had disappeared, completely hidden by two large swellings, above and below the eye socket. The left eye was still open, but the eyebrow had been brushed away, as it were, until it presented an arched appearance. The cheek bones and the nose had not escaped the fists of his opponent and showed signs of being the worse for wear and tear. Thoroughly battered lips pursed over a chin that was gashed and swollen. Handley pleaded not guilty to the charge, and was remanded for hearing on Tuesday. If Roach who now lies in hospital in a critical condition is not able to attend on Tuesday, the hearing will be postponed, stated the court.

Peculiarly enough the knife or other instrument with which the wound was made, is missing. All police efforts to find the weapon up to noon to-day had proved fruitless. The disappearance of the knife or any instrument with which the wound could have been caused, comprises one of the mysteries that will occupy the attention of the court during the trial of the accused.

American Consulate at British Port Closed

Newcastle-on-Tyne, Sept. 2.—Fred C. Slater, the American consul, denied to the Associated Press last night that the consulate had ever put difficulties in the way of visiting passports of those persons who failed to promise to travel on American vessels. While advertising matter of American lines had been placed in the hands of travelers after a visa had been granted, he said, no mention of an American line had been made prior to granting the visa. No pressure had been used to persuade anyone to travel on American lines.

No Steps by U. S.

Washington, Sept. 2.—The Washington Government is not convinced that there was any misconception on the part of its two consular officers at Newcastle, Eng., who recently were deprived of their authority by British officials, and until a proper investigation has been made no steps are to be made to reopen the Newcastle consulate.

The action of the British authorities in cancelling the exequaturs of the two American agents, it was pointed out, automatically resulted in the closing of the consulate, and if convenience to British subjects has resulted, the responsibility for it does not fall upon Washington. For the present no other consular officers are available for the Newcastle post, it is declared, and in any case the Government is immediately interested in having the doubt which has been cast upon its representatives cleared away, one way or the other.

Conditions Upset.

Newcastle-on-Tyne, Sept. 2.—Newcastle shipping and business circles are in a state of consternation on consternation to-day owing to the closing of the American consulate.

Numerous ships of various nationalities already are held up, lacking consular bills of health; shipments of merchandise for the United States can not go forward without consular invoices, and many persons desiring to travel to America are clamoring for visas which under the regulations must be obtained from the consul in the district in which they reside.

To Spain.

In the meantime Consul Slater is working behind closed doors, clearing up affairs of the consulate, preparing to leave for his home in London, Coruna, Spain, while Herbert Shaw, secretary of the Newcastle Chamber of Commerce, is urgently pressing the British authorities at London to make some sort of arrangement whereby business can proceed.

Delayed shipments of merchandise are costing shippers heavily. The number of visas is raising great difficulties owing to the extent of the consular area and owing to the fact that residents can not get visas in another area.

to Ottawa by fishing interests on this coast in order that complaints might be thoroughly investigated. The Parliamentary committee advocated the appointment of a commission, and the Order-in-Council was passed on Tuesday. The object of the commission is to go into matters connected with the British Columbia fisheries thoroughly. All those interested in the industry and are in a position to give evidence that might assist the commissioners in their efforts to bring about better conditions as they exist on this coast are invited to appear to testify before the commission.

Sit Here Tuesday

The first session of the commission will be held at 10 o'clock on Tuesday morning next in the Council Chamber at the City Hall. The first session on the coast was held at Prince Rupert on August 14, and the commission has since held sessions at East Bella Bella, Rivers Inlet, Skagway, Quilley Cove, Nimmo, Port Alberni and Uclulet. On September 7 the commission will sit at New Westminster and at Vancouver September 8 and 9. The commission will later hold a session for Cowichan district.

H. W. BRODIE WINS MERITED PROMOTION IN C.P.R. SERVICE

Appointed Assistant Passenger Traffic Manager With Headquarters at Montreal

Popular Official Has Had Meteoric Career With Company

H. W. Brodie, general passenger agent for the Canadian Pacific Railway at Vancouver for the past twelve years, has been appointed assistant passenger traffic manager of the Canadian Pacific Railway system, with headquarters at Montreal, Quebec.

Mr. Brodie is succeeding C. E. Foster, now passenger traffic manager. Mr. Foster succeeds C. E. Usher, who has been made general passenger traffic manager, a post newly created by the Canadian Pacific management.

Popular Appointment.

Mr. Brodie's appointment is a very popular one. During the twelve years he has held the office of general passenger agent at Vancouver, his territory has been extended to take in the entire Pacific coast. It speaks well for Mr. Brodie's efforts that the passenger business of the Canadian Pacific Railway has worked so smoothly at Vancouver, and that notable developments and new situations were met and administered so effectively. His many friends, both in Vancouver and Victoria, regard his promotion as well earned.

His Successors.

Mr. Brodie will be followed at Vancouver by W. H. Snell, of Montreal. Other changes announced include: G. A. Walton, of Winnipeg, to be general passenger agent at Montreal; R. McNeill of Winnipeg, to be general passenger agent at Montreal; N. R. DeBrisay, to be assistant general passenger agent at Winnipeg; G. B. Burpee, to be district passenger agent at St. John; W. Maughan, to be assistant to the general passenger traffic manager at Montreal; W. B. Howard, to be assistant general passenger agent at Montreal; W. Fulton, to be district passenger agent at Toronto.

Career.

Mr. Brodie joined the Canadian Pacific on January 1, 1895, as junior clerk in the passenger department at St. John, N. B. In July of the same year he was transferred to Boston, and that fall to Toronto. He was made chief clerk in the Toronto office in February, 1898, and transferred to Winnipeg in a similar position in October, 1899. He became assistant general passenger agent of the company at Winnipeg in 1903 and came to Vancouver on November 1, 1910, as general passenger agent of the Pacific division in charge of rail lines from Revelstoke to Vancouver, and of passenger business in the States of Washington, Oregon and Alaska, and the B. C. Coast Steamship Services.

Since that time his jurisdiction had been extended, first to embrace the entire California district, and in later years into the commission and the administrative end of the passenger traffic. During Mr. Brodie's service in Vancouver, the passenger business has shown great strides. The tourist traffic jumped ahead, new trains and boats came into commission and the administrative end of the passenger traffic became a very responsible office.

To Parade Tuesday.—No. 1 Company, 11th Canadian Machine Gun Brigade, will parade at the Victoria Exhibition, Tuesday, Sept. 5, at 1:50 p. m. Dress, drill order. It is pointed out to all ranks, that as this season is to be a short one (ending Dec. 1, 1922), it is imperative that no time be lost in getting into the swing of the annual work.

Closer Season.—With a banquet, a trip up the Gorge in canoes with their lady friends and concluding with a dance, the social function held at the Gorge last evening by the Young Men's Club of the Y. M. C. A., proved a successful event. A dance terminated the function, being held in the Elk's Hall. Music was arranged by Cowper's orchestra.

Denies Story.—Further denial that there is a deliberate effort on the part of Victoria to divert tourists from Vancouver to Victoria through the Publicity Bureau's agent in Seattle, is made in a letter from the Seattle agent himself to Mr. Warren, in which he says that he merely sees that tourists get all the information possible regarding Victoria and Vancouver at all in connection with this work says the representative, L. H. Wiltshire.

Maternity Ward Fund.—At a special meeting of the Women's Auxiliary to the Provincial Jubilee Hospital yesterday afternoon, consideration was given to the board's request that the auxiliary turn over its maternity ward fund to the board. The general consensus of opinion was that this fund had been earmarked for furnishing and could not be touched, but it was suggested that the balance of the building fund of the W. A. be turned over to the board for present constructing the new building. This other part of the fund has been used in building the power house and laundry. Mrs. Rhodes was appointed to convey the suggestion to the hospital board.

OCTOBER 9 FIRE PREVENTION DAY

Canadians Asked to Join in Crusade Against Fires

Monday, October 9, has been set by the Federal Government as "Fire Prevention Day," when efforts to prevent fires will be made all over Canada. In an order-in-council published in the last issue of The Canada Gazette it is recommended on that day that:

1. All dwellings and their surroundings be carefully inspected by their occupants and all conditions likely to cause or promote the spread of fire removed.
2. All public buildings, stores, warehouses and factories be inspected and cleaned of rubbish in order to reduce fire hazards and maintain health and safety.
3. All hotels, theatres, asylums, hospitals and other institutional buildings be inspected and provision made for all changes necessary to protect the occupants from danger in the event of fire.
4. Fire drills be held for the children in all schools, for the inmates of institutions and for the employees in all large stores and factories in order that a proper degree of safety may be ensured by acquainting the occupants with the best and most expeditious mode of exit in time of danger.
5. Special instruction on the subject of fire prevention be given by the teachers and by municipal fire departments in the schools and that such appropriate literature as may be made available be distributed to the pupils.
6. Boy Scout leaders give instructions to the troops under their control as to the best means of co-operating with municipal fire departments in the prevention and extinguishment of fires and especially as to the desirability of qualifying for the Fireman's badge.
7. Operators of lumber camps, settlers, campers, hunters and others who may from time to time enter our national parks and forest areas acquaint themselves with all laws, regulations and precautionary rules devised and established for the safeguarding of the woods against fire.
8. All legislation and regulations enacted or issued by Dominion, Provincial or Municipal authorities dealing with fire prevention be given publicity by the municipal officials and other persons in the communities or otherwise as may seem most fit, they endeavor to impress upon the citizens the importance of safeguarding life and property from loss by fire.

One-half of the list of approximately 250 parcels which remained after last minute tax payments had been dealt with by the luncheon adjournment. The sale will continue this afternoon, and unsold properties will again be offered on Tuesday morning.

FOUR VICTORIANS AT BOYS' NAVAL BRIGADE CAMP

The Boys' Naval Brigade camp, which has been held on the north shore of Burrard Inlet, closed on Wednesday after ten days of strenuous exercise, recreation and hard work. The camp is conducted on the same lines as a ship, commencing with reveille at 6 o'clock, continuing until 9 p. m., and boat sailing, rowing and swimming form part of the day's work.

Four of the Boys' Naval Brigades of the Province were represented at the camp, namely Vancouver, Victoria, Courtenay and Maple Ridge, with a total of twenty-four boys, of which Victoria sent four, Messrs. Rudge, Ford, Davis and Thompson, three of whom were placed high for proficiency.

While in camp proficiency examinations are held, and it is upon the result of these examinations that selections are made for appointments as cadets as the vacancies occur. In addition, there is the proficiency cup, which is competed for, and the boy who obtains the highest marks becomes the holder for one year. This is a very handsome silver cup, and the boy winning it for two years, or a succession becomes the absolute owner of it. The maximum number of marks obtainable is 100, and while

Chicago, Sept. 2.—Roger Hornsby, leading the National League in individual batting and home run hitting, to-day is so far in advance of his challengers that any bid they may make to overtake him will not seriously threaten his drive for the 1922 championship.

The St. Louis marvel, with the close of the season just five weeks away, to-day has a 25-point margin over his rivals and is batting stronger as the race draws to a close. His string of 32 home runs is the best performance in the history of the National League. His average is .399.

Sisler Still Leads Cobb.

The race between Cobb and Sisler in the American League is dragging along with very little change. Sisler is out in front with an average of .413, while Cobb is trailing with .401. Sisler, who has been leading the base-stealers almost all season, increased his total to 42 bases. His closest rival is his team mate Ke

Williams, who has 33.
Tillie Walker, of Philadelphia, and Ken Williams, are tied for home run honors, each having cracked out 3. Walker smashed out a brace during the week, while Williams failed to increase his mark of a week ago. But Ruth also connected with a brace of four baggers and is only four behind the pair. With 28 round-trip blows, Ruth's admirers are confident that he will overtake the pair before the wind-up.

New York, Sept. 2.—Not a pitching star of the season of 1921 is apt to come up to his form in 1922, according to the opinion of six major league managers. Some of the pitchers who are good, passively so; and that is a fact, says the manager of the White Sox, has not the ghost of a chance to do what he did last year, and he has a better-kept behind him.

Hoyt, of the Yankees, started out with the firm determination that he would lead the major league pitchers and immediately pitched himself in a double team yoke and there tri-

Anderson's first showing was a surprise to Johnston and other leading tennis players who had watched him in workout before yesterday's matches. His game in practice was as good as his in the real thing. He teamedmate, Patterson, and he was expected to force Johnston to the limit. Anderson himself could not have been more disappointed.

Fourteen thousand spectators were packed around the turf windswept arena of remarkable tennis play in yesterday's matches. There were times in the Tilden-Patterson match, which was won by Tilden, that a break in the luck might have given the Australian a set at least from his American opponent. No such opportunity came, however, in the Patterson match, the Californian dashing shine with so much dark paint around his eyes that he seemed almost blind although he has been basking in the shadow of Babe Ruth's diamonds. He has pitched some good ones since he got to New York. Some of them kicked away from him and has helped it somewhat himself by slipping toward the closer of the catcher.

Mays But a Shadow

Mays is but a shadow. He is no more to be compared with the Mays of 1921 than French fried potatoes are to be compared with those broken even to date, and there is no hope that he will. To do so must have one continued round of good luck, like the whipped cream. It looks as if he will get be-

Coveleskie, the pitching Pole, has long held Cleveland in the line. Light started us if he meant to sign the booby prize. He has been doing better and has caught up with his self and now has a few more victories than defeats, but he can't be Covey of last Summer. It is not the cards.

The players who shone better this year were glimmer last year and have fought along to shine a lot better this year are Shocker and Bush. These boys played the best ball of the year.

The Opening of School

again brings to the front the vital importance of providing the proper pen for every student and scholar.

Every attention is paid to having text books easy to read, in order to avoid eye-strain.

Too often, little attention is given to the choice of a pen—with the result that the wrong size or shape of the ordinary pen tires the hand, writing becomes irksome, and the handwriting grows more and more illegible.

Waterman's Ideal Fountain Pen

is an education in smooth, easy, effortless writing. The steady, uninterrupted flow of ink allows the pen to keep pace with the student's thoughts.

It provides a size to perfectly fit every hand, from boy and girl just entering the graded schools to those attending college and university. There is a point to suit every style of writing, including the point recommended by Boards of Education, fitted to three distinct types of barrel—regular, safety and self-filling.

See that your boy or girl has the right pen to do his or her best work at school.

WILL SEEK TO VALIDATE ACT

Council Wishes to Carry Out Taxation Scheme

"It would bring about possibilities I dare not contemplate," said Mayor Marchant at yesterday afternoon's session of the Council, when referring back for reconsideration the Taxation Committee's recommendation that in connection with the fifteen-year extension plan for tax arrears this year's tax sale be abandoned.

After careful perusal of the Act and consultation with treasury officials, His Worship said he was satisfied that the clause in the Act compelling the municipality to hold a sale of all its properties two years in arrears was not to be avoided, and therefore the sale would have to be held.

Alderman Todd admitted the correctness of the Mayor's contention, but pointed out that in order to carry out the scheme which would admittedly be of considerable advantage to the city, it had been the intention to apply to the Legislature for enabling legislation.

"That legislation was put through in recognition of the fact that the municipalities by withholding taxes were making it too easy for people not to pay their taxes," said Alderman Woodward.

"The best taxpayer is the man who comes up and pays his taxes on time. We should not ask the Legislature to undo that wise piece of legislation," he said.

An Excessive Penalty.

Alderman Leeming pointed out the folly of penalizing a taxpayer as a delinquent fifteen days after a certain date. He had pointed this out to the City Finance Committee long ago, and before he became a member of the City Council. "We should try and keep our people out of the gutter instead of doing our best to shove them into it," he said.

Alderman Hayward said he favored a shorter period of extension, and explained that his visit to the prairie cities had proved that the western municipalities were doing everything in their power to enable taxpayers to hold their property.

Alderman Todd moved and Alderman Perry seconded a motion to the effect that the Mayor and City Solicitor should interview the Government and municipal inspector to see if an assurance might be secured that enabling legislation would be put through at the next session of the Legislature.

Alderman Gillespie said it should be made plain to the public that the relief plan under discussion applied only to taxes in arrears up to September 30 this year, and not to current year's taxes.

Criticizes 1918 Act.

"The city's 1918 taxation relief scheme was no relief at all. It was only an added milestone around the necks of the delinquents," said Alderman Leeming, who claimed that some same method should be worked out to prevent further reversions to the city.

Alderman Dewar pointed out that there was danger of delinquent taxpayers next year appealing again to the Council for the same relief that is now preferred.

Interesting Letter From Woman in South Africa

Johannesburg, South Africa.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for weakness and because I felt run down. I tried a lot of medicines before I tried yours. One day I was standing on my stoop when a boy came up to me and handed me one of your little books. I read the book and the next day my husband went to the chemist and bought me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I have taken the medicine ever since and I feel quite strong and well now as I am on the sixth bottle. I have written to my sister and told her all about the wonders it has done for me, and I am quite willing for you to use my name as I can not thank you enough for what it has done for me."—Mrs. W. F. Rush, 128 6th Ave., Mayfair, Fordeburg, Johannesburg, South Africa.

It is this sort of praise of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, given by letter or verbally, one woman to another, that ought to commend this splendid medicine to you.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a medicine for women's ailments (in use nearly fifty years), and the fact that it has helped thousands of other women, should cause you to give it a trial now. It can be safely taken by any woman—young or old.

NO SENSE SPEEDING TO COURT DISASTER

There is nothing gained in speeding or trying to beat trains at railroad crossings.

This is the contention of R. R. Webb, Victoria Auto Club secretary. Commenting on the necessity of careful driving, Mr. Webb said:

"In some provinces courts have ruled that the driver of an automobile is responsible by law for any injury to passengers in the car, even if they are not 'pass' passengers. This ruling has acted as a restraining factor, for few motorists wish to face a suit for damages.

"The railroads themselves, while waging campaigns for safety, are not entirely in the clear. Many crossings over which heavy traffic, both by rail and automobile, pass, are left unguarded by a watchman, for often they are 'blind' because of buildings or hills.

"There is at present a concerted effort to have all grade crossings eliminated. This may be accomplished in time, but not for many years. Hence, both the motorist and

SPORT HUPMOBILE

CREATES IMPRESSION

New Five-seater Is Sturdy Addition to Light Models

The 1922 Sport model Hupmobile has arrived in town, being the first of a series of two cars on order by S. E. Wallis, Victoria representative of the Consolidated Motor Company Ltd., 933 Yates Street. The new model has been on the road in Vancouver for some time and has won golden opinions from its operators.

It is a stark model five-passenger sport body, with the standard Hupmobile equipment and some attractive innovations. Rated at 18 horse power, it will run up to 40 miles a gallon, states Mr. Wallis. On gasoline it will run 20 miles to the gallon as a fair average. It is said, and is economical in its oil consumption. Equipped with 32.4 inch cords the Sport Hupmobile will make from 22,000 and 15,000 miles on one set of tires, states Mr. Wallis.

In design the new model is little changed from the well known Hupmobile product, and the engine is the same reliable model of perfection that has been on the roads with change in design since the Fall of 1916. A special nickel radiator, aluminum sbg. plates, nickel headlights, and splash fenders on a trim model of battleship grey comprise the exterior fittings of a sporting five-seater that is sure to be popular.

Though the Victoria branch of the Consolidated Motors Ltd. has been in operation in this city but ten months the general manager is already experiencing that glow of warmth that comes from successful business and a return of the confidence of the buying public. This is one of the record years for the Hupmobile in Vancouver, and local sales bid fair to rival that terminal city market, it is said.

The new Hupmobile is a sturdy and attractive addition to the light motor field, and is already forming a host of friends in this city. It is significant that throughout the years of great change in most motor vehicles design the Hupmobile has steadily manufactured a series of models that are identical with their 1916 product in all save more or less superficial refinements. Engine design and well known features of construction are now a constant factor of their make-up, approximating the pinnacle of careful design and execution. The sport model is shipped to the local branch in a semi-finished condition, being assembled as to its exterior equipment at this branch.

GOOD ROADS REPORT FOR 1921-1922 IS DISTRIBUTED

The Good Roads enthusiasts of the Province are again looking forward to the annual convention of the Good Roads League of British Columbia, which meets this year at Kamloops. The dates have been set as October 2 and 3, the convention of the Union of B.C. Municipalities being held at the same place on the Wednesday and Thursday following.

Copies of the report of the proceedings of the last Good Roads Convention, which was held at Port Alberni on August 30 and 31, last year, along with notices calling upon municipalities and good roads associations to elect delegates to the forthcoming Kamloops meeting, have recently been sent out from the office of the secretary of the League, H. Frank Bird, Hotel Vancouver, Vancouver.

The report contains not only the resolutions adopted at the last convention, which have been presented to the Government, but gives the text of the informing address of the President R. H. Gale on the progress of the Good Roads movement in the Province during 1921 and 1922. There is also found in the report the address of P. Phillip, Chief Engineer of the Public Works Department, on "Some of the Outstanding Problems of British Columbia Highways."

Copies of the report can be obtained by those interested from the secretary or the director for the Westminister district, J. R. Agar, president of the New Westminister Automobile Club, and Reeve D. W. Poppy, Langley.

COVERS PROTECT TIRES

Everyone has heard the story about the erasers being put at the end of lead pencils because of the mistakes that are made with the other end of the pencil. R. P. Strang, manager of the Spirekels-Fayage Tire Company, states that the "points" are put on pencils for use in figuring up the cost of tires.

"In figuring up the cost, many motorists neglect to take into consideration the funds that are tied up in their extra fire equipment," says Strang. "The truth of the matter is that the extra tire, even if it is never taken off the rack, is subject to process of disintegration and must be estimated as a portion of the tire cost just the same as the tires that have actually been run on the wheels. Tire covers help to prevent deterioration of reason as well as for looks, the extra tire should always be kept covered."

"The expense of the extra tire is, of course, increased where two or more spares are carried, and there is probably no greater false economy than to purchase tires of low quality because of low price and then spend money on spares that would have bought the finest tire."

CANADA'S AUTO EXPORTS GROWING

Will Be Greatest Auto Exporting Country in World Within a Decade

"It is predicted that within a decade Canada will be the greatest automobile exporting country in the world," says The Industrial Digest, New York. "Several of the world's largest producers of motor vehicles, according to recent reports, are now handling all their export business from the Dominion, while the largest individual manufacturer of motor cars has for some years filled all orders for the British Dominions from his plant on the Canadian side of the St. Clair River.

"The progress of the automobile export business in Canada has been comparable to the remarkable development which has taken place in the home markets. With a population of about 9,000,000, Canada owns and operates over 400,000 automobiles and trucks. A decade has witnessed an increase in automobile ownership of twenty fold. While such a phenomenal advance is not to be expected again, continuous replacement of motor vehicles is assured. Within the next ten years, Canada will offer a home market for more than 500,000 motor vehicles for replacement purposes only. In that time, it is believed the market will expand its demand from 50,000 to 60,000 motor vehicles per annum, which it now offers, to beyond 100,000 motor vehicles.

"In the automobile manufacturing concerns alone, employment is given to about 8,000 wage earners and 1,200 or 1,500 salaried hands. Wages paid total about $10,000,000 and salaries about $3,000,000. Manufacturers of automobile supplies pay salaries amounting to nearly $1,000,000 every year and wages of more than $5,000,000.

"In many cases, however, automobiles are assembled rather than manufactured by the Canadian companies, sponsoring them so as the volume of automobiles imported falls off, in proportion to sales of cars made in Canada, the volume of automobile parts imported manifests a decided increase.

"The most recent information compiled about the Canadian automobile industry is that contained in a preliminary report on the motor industry in Canada for 1920, which has just been published by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics."

"GUTTA PERCHA" TIRES

"Enduring as Bronze"—the old Romans used to say. It might apply to a "Gutta Percha" Tire. Endurance is the quality tire makers try to get and motorists insist upon having. Roads rugged with rocks will put the "third degree" on most tires. Here is where the "Gutta Percha" Tires show the stuff they are made of. "Gutta Percha" Tires give a prodigious amount of wear. Little perfections in skill and science and art too, perhaps wholly undiscovered in most factories, have been the secret of making "Gutta Percha" Tires so good. The unusual respect shown to "Gutta Percha" Tires by motorists and the Trade in general proves that we have found the way—and we mean to keep on.

PRICE: What a tire costs depends entirely on the service it gives. "Gutta Percha" Tires are the "Tires that Cost Least."

DR. POLLING TO TOUR EXTENSIVELY

Will Go to South America in Effort to Aid Protestant Churches

Rev. Daniel A. Polling, associate president of the United Society of Christian Endeavor, has changed plans made for him to visit Brazil, and later perhaps to make a tour of the world in the interest of Christian Endeavor. Such a change was made necessary by conditions obtaining in the religious body to which he belongs. This is the United Evangelical Church.

The controlling bodies of this church and of the Evangelical Association are about to meet in Barrington, Ill., and Detroit, respectively. A project is before them to bring about organic union. Leaders in the United Church feel keenly that Dr. Polling ought not to be absent when these meetings are held, and so the trustees of Christian Endeavor have released him for the present from the engagement to go to Brazil. The release has upset plans of long standing for a Latin American convention in Rio.

These Evangelical churches date from the early part of the nineteenth century, and from a start made in Eastern Pennsylvania. The first minister among them, Rev. Jacob Albright, was a trained Methodist. Reformation ideals, long held by English-speaking Christians in America, affected the German Christians, and the association was one result. For nearly a century they worked in harmony, but about thirty years ago they separated, and the United Church resulted. Now efforts are making to bring them together again. A stout minority which may prove to be a majority, opposes the union. Hence the presence of all who favor union, including Dr. Polling, is desired.

The strength of both bodies is in the Middle West, and together they number some 250,000 members. Neither body has many Christian Endeavor societies. If union takes place such societies are to be formed. An argument of those who favor union is that it will assist the general movement toward organic union now under way in all Protestant bodies, and also with the Anglican and Eastern Orthodox Churches. When the Evangelical Church meetings are over, and the question of union determined, Dr. Polling contemplates visits to eight countries of South America. He will go in the interest of Christian Endeavor alone, but as part of a plan put forth by Protestant bodies of North America to assist the Protestant development of Latin America, in as far as churches there desire assistance. The convention called for Rio was to be held during the Centennial Exposition, the aim being to consider the entire Protestant outlook of the continent.

BOSTON SPEAKER DECLARES CHURCH SHOULD BACK LAW

The church should lead in law enforcement, for laws are never enforced unless there is insistent public sentiment behind them. The church should co-operate with all social service agencies, because the goal of both is a common one. The church should not feel discouraged because attendance at mid-week prayer meetings is slim. Church members of to-day are putting at least as much time and thought and energy and devotion into their religion as did the members of the church 100 years ago, who worshipped only by listening to the preaching of the minister. These were some of the statements made by A. E. Hertz, of Boston, speaking on the function of the church in the community in his course at the conference of religious education at East Northfield, Mass.

"What every church could do and be in every community," was the subject of the talk of Mr. Hertz, who is giving a course on social service. The church should give Christian instruction. It should be rich in ministrations of mercy, not that the church is a benevolent institution, for it was the definite idea of the early church to avoid any possible change into a charitable organization. Nevertheless, churches should do all the social service work they can—more than they are now doing. The church should encourage important social institutions, such as the home and the school and the enforcement of law. The early Christian church made possible the civility of the middle ages, a great step forward in the uplifting of the wife and mother.

"The church should promote vocational ethics. It should co-operate with all community agencies for social service. The prayer meeting should be kept up, but should be utilized through changes which will attract every element of the church membership."

Will Preach To-morrow—Rev. A. K. McMin, pastor of the First Congregational Church, returns to his pulpit to-morrow after a month's holidays. Members of the congregation are reminded of the Sunday School picnic to Island View Beach, Labor Day. Motors leave church at 10:30.

WORLD'S SUNDAY SCHOOL MEETING

WILL BE HELD

Will Be Held on June 18, 1924, With 3,500 Delegates

Now that the International Sunday School convention at Kansas City has completed its work, the Sunday school workers are thinking toward the ninth convention of the World's Sunday School Association, which will be held in Glasgow, Scotland, beginning June 18, 1924. James Kelly, secretary of the Scottish National Sabbath School Association, has just returned to Scotland after having numerous conferences with the officers of the World's Sunday School Association in New York City. Mr. Kelly also is secretary of the Scottish convention committee. He reports that St. Andrew's hall has been engaged as the place of meeting. This great hall will now seat 2,500, and it is hoped that the capacity will be still greater following the remodeling which is in progress. Some of the most distinguished among the nobility in Great Britain have accepted places on the various committees which already are working for the success and comfort of the convention. Extreme courtesies already have been offered for the delegates who will attend. Those in charge of the great universities and religious bodies in Scotland have agreed to participate in seeking to make the convention an even greater success than the one held in Tokio in 1920.

Two thousand is the number of delegates assigned to North America. From the number of advance inquiries it is certain that many more will wish to attend than can be accommodated during the convention. As in the case of previous conventions of the World's Association, it is possible to secure a reservation by making an advance deposit of $25. This money will be refunded in full up to thirty days before the time of sailing if the trip cannot be made by the delegate. All who send this initial deposit of $25 before Dec. 31, 1922, will be given preference in the assigning of staterooms on the four first chosen, when the various itineraries have been announced formally.

CHURCH MEMBERSHIP

The General Council of Churches of Christ in America has just published some interesting figures touching church membership in the United States. It states that ten out of every one hundred and six persons in the republic have no admitted church affiliations, while of the other ninety-six, seventy-five are Protestants, eighteen are Roman Catholics and three belong to other faiths. The total population is thus divided: Protestant 75,699,489; Roman Catholic 17,885,446; Mormons 587,918; and Eastern Orthodox 41,054. The three largest bodies are: Methodists, 22,171,355; Baptist, 21,938,700; Roman Catholic, 17,885,446. It is only fair to say that the figures given for the Roman Catholic Church are much below what that communion claims for itself.

To Speak at Y. W. C. A.—Mr. P. Montgomery, who has just reached Victoria from China, will address the Bible class on Sunday at 4:30. He has been engaged for some years in educational mission work in that wonderful country and will be sure to very much interest all who will come to the Stobart Building on Yates Street taking the elevator to the fourth floor.

UNITY RATHER THAN UNION

Rev. Dr. Scott Answers Criticism of Methodist Church Organ

Writing to The Christian Guardian in reply to an editorial in which it was suggested that the Presbyterian Church was under moral obligation to proceed to union with the Congregational and Methodist Churches, and to keep faith with the negotiating churches, Rev. Dr. Ephraim Scott, editor of The Presbyterian Record, and one of the leaders of those who are concerned for the preservation of the Presbyterian Church, says:

"I am not concerned to defend Presbyterian fidelity to agreements. That must stand or fall on its own merits in the everyday business world. But I would like to state some facts for those who may not have opportunity of knowing them. The Methodist church, as your readers are aware, is incorporated. It is a legal entity. The General Conference, if it so decides, can transfer the church, with its civil rights and possessions, to another control. The Presbyterian Church is not incorporated. It is not a legal entity. The church is the people. The Assembly is chosen to legislate within and for the Presbyterian Church, is pledged to maintain and defend the same, but has no power beyond the church to transfer the church to a new or different control.

The General Assembly tacitly recognized this fact at the outset when it adopted unanimously without amendment or change, in 1905, the first report of its first Union Committee, which contained in one of its paragraphs the statement that a union of the church, to be real and lasting, must carry the consent of the entire membership."

After analyzing the votes taken on the question of union by the Presbyterians, that of 1911, showing a vote of 113,000 of the 288,918 members voting for organic union and 59,733 against, and the vote of 1915 when, although the membership had increased by nearly forty thousand, those in favor of union had increased by only 600, while the number opposed had increased by 23,000, Dr. Scott refers to the determination of the Assembly of 1921 to proceed to the consummation of union as expeditiously as possible. He argues that in all this those in favor of organic union did their utmost to carry out their purpose. "If, in their zeal for union, they overestimated their rights and powers, and resolved on what they had at least done what they could. Failure on their part is not owing to ethical, but to physical, limitations."

Have Kept Faith.—"On the other hand, there can be no lack of 'good faith' charged to the Presbyterians, who believe that Christ has not called His people to union, but to unity," he says. "The Presbyterians have not called their churches to do more for the Kingdom of God in Canada than could the proposed new organization, even if such new organization were possible; who know it their right and believe it their duty to continue in the meantime their own Church, and who have consistently declared it to be their purpose not to consent to its disbanding or transferring on the demand of only one-third of its membership. Some Presbyterians have made promises which they cannot fulfill; the responsibility must rest with themselves, and not with the Presbyterian Church, or with those who have protested such promises and declared their purpose to maintain their Church for the present, in continuance.

"One further statement recently made in your columns is: 'We cannot get a united world with a spiritually divided and broken Christendom.' To this a threefold answer may be given.

"The united world, for which the world's best statesmen are seeking and working, is not a world under one central control, which Germany attempted in vain, but a world of free, self-determining nations, no matter how small, living in unity and peace."

Freedom of Choice.—"We have to-day not a spiritually divided and broken, but a spiritually united Christendom; united in the same fashion in which the statement is seeking to unite the world—the Churches self-determining, one in Christ."

"The influence of the Church upon the world is spiritual, not physical, and that influence makes itself felt entirely irrespective of size or name or form, by Christian life and work."

BACK TO SCENE OF THEIR LABORS

Missionaries Are Returning to Foreign Fields

Dr. and Mrs. Tennant, of This City, in Party

Toronto, Sept. 2.—With the ranks augmented by the addition of many new workers, the missionaries of the Methodist church in the East have begun the fall exodus from this country to the scene of their labors. The majority of those returning have completed the usual year's furlough in Canada and go back with renewed vigor and ambition, increased perhaps by the wonderful response which the mission appeal has encountered over the past year and by the infusion of new blood into the number of those who have given of their best in the past. In China the greater part of the Methodist mission work lies in the province of Sze-Chuan, while in Japan the centre of activity are spread over the whole of the island kingdom.

TO FOLLOW CHRIST'S INJUNCTION—LITERALLY

Rev. Bunford Clarke, who recently has resigned a pastorate in Brooklyn, is called by those who know him a poet, painter, preacher. Impressed with the idea that the highways and hedges of the country are thronged with people who know little and hear less of the Gospel message, he has had constructed a miniature pulpit on a Ford chassis. This he can let down at the rear of his conveyance at any point where he can gather a company, large or small, to listen to his message. His little compartment is equipped with a musical instrument which he plays himself, and the whole outfit is topped by a wooden cross. He intends to pilot himself across the continent, from town to town, preaching the Gospel to all who will listen, in accordance with the spirit of Christ's parable in the fourteenth chapter of Luke.

Kathleen Listens To Friendly Counsel

IT had been a great day and Kathleen had romped over field and meadow to her heart's content. Now near the close of the day, she rested on the edge of a ring of trees which stood at the edge of a little brook made an enjoyable setting to rest the eyes upon. Seated thus Kathleen became drowsy and presently her head drooped lower and lower until she slept. That is what her mother said later, for Kathleen maintained that she had not fallen asleep at all, but was very much awake.

Asleep or awake Kathleen had not long been there before she noticed a rustle behind her in the fairy ring, for such some call the ring of trees growing in this manner. At first she could not see anything unusual but as her eyes became accustomed to the shade under the ring she saw little figures hopping about. Dressed in fairy green with little wings of silver on their shoulders and caps of the same on their heads these little figures danced around in a circle with the prettiest of them all in its centre.

The central figure was clothed all in gold and was beautiful to look upon. Kathleen watched fascinated and presently thought she could hear little voices. Soon her ears became attuned to the voices and she made out scattered words. Later still the words grew more connected and she heard the burden of their chant: "We are fairies all," they sang, and danced faster and faster in their glittering circle. Presently at a sign from the leader in the centre the dance came to an end, and the fairies seated themselves in a circle around their leader.

Emboldened by the mystery of the night Kathleen crept closer and then sat very still. The fairies took no notice of her, for indeed they were busy with their own affairs. It seemed a school was in progress. The leader waved a silver wand at a tiny fairy near the middle of the group and that fairy stood up. "I am Kindness," said the figure, "Kindness which lightens the load of all; which makes no enemies and has many friends. In time my friends grow like me, and they than have no enemies."

"Very good, Kindness," said the leader, "but you forgot that Kindness is a quality of the mind that is warmed by the heart and is of most service when most readily offered." Another wave of the wand brought another fairy to the front. "I am Honor," it said, "Honor fulfills its trust and deals with the bank of Good Faith. Honor lies not nor descends to take an unworthy advantage of its fellows."

"Not bad, Honor, but you too forgot one thing," replied the leader of this quaint school, "and that is Honor is delicate and must keep company or it will soon tarnish." The fairy wand again brought another fairy to its feet. "I am Duty," it said, "Duty the brother of Honor and half-brother of Kindness. I finish what is my work to perform. I stay behind to make sure that my task is done."

"Yes, and what else?" prompted the leader. "Oh, yes, Duty climbs the hill of need and never seeks the easy way," it replied.

"I am Truth," said yet another, "Truth that commands Trust from my friends or foes alike. I believe in the Good in all, and expect to be trusted as I trust." "Excellent," said the leader. Catching sight of Kathleen, then the fairy leader waved the silver wand again. Kathleen found herself on her feet; her lips moved by their own effort and she heard herself say many things.

"I am Kathleen," said the lips, though Kathleen had not tried to speak. "Kathleen has been brought up to like Kindness, Honor, Duty and Truth, but sometimes they leave her and Self-Interest, Carelessness, Idleness, and Prejudice take charge. Kathleen would like to know how to keep away these foes."

"It is easy," said the leader in a very sweet voice, "all you have to do is to stop and listen. Conscience (here a tiny fairy with a very light but silvery voice stood up), Conscience what must Kathleen do to be happy always?"

"She must work hard, keep healthy, and listen to me. I will tell her when she plans to do wrong and if she be but guided by me, small as I am, her foes will leave her alone."

"But Conscience I never seem to be able to hear what you say and—" began Kathleen, but the fairies had vanished. Wondering, Kathleen stood up and stretched herself. She was stiff and cramped, and curiously enough was in the same place that she first sat down upon, under the leafy branches of a lime tree.

The trees that formed the ring whispered softly to themselves. Kathleen scanned the branches but if the fairies were there they gave no sign.

Over late already Kathleen picked up her belongings that she had laid aside and made for home. Gracious, what would mother say, she was hours late, she thought. She would say that she was detained by her auntie who wanted her to go to the post office. Half heard, half a memory, Kathleen caught the tinkle of a silver little voice in her ear: "I am Conscience," it said, "listen to me."

"Gracious, child, where have you been?" said her mother a few moments later.

"Auntie—Auntie was not home and I spent the afternoon in the brook meadow, and I think I fell asleep." Kathleen was not sure but she thought she heard a wee chuckle from a silver voice and felt almost the breath of a soft caress on her cheeks. It may have been the soft night wind; who knows?

Animals Prove Faithful Chums

RECENTLY a family living in a village of Vermont moved, leaving behind them their baby tabby cat named Topsy. It was deemed that she would be more at home in the old house. The family took with them Topsy's chum, Fido, a dog that was raised side by side in the same house with the cat. Fido mourned his missing companion in the new home. One day his master to console him began to talk about the cat, calling her by name. Most as a joke than anything else the man told Fido to go and get Topsy. That night Fido was missing. The dog remained away four days, and returned with Topsy. The strange pair had been seen together on the road, trotting along contentedly. Fido had three fights that were seen, and perhaps others that were not witnessed, before he escorted the pussy cat to her new home. Once there all was again well. Topsy, it seemed, preferred companionship to tradition. This incident, given in an article in "Our Four-Footed Friends" goes a long way towards upsetting the tradition that a cat will leave its old home.

SCOUTS ON TREK TO SUMMER CAMP

Fairfield and St. Mary's troops under way for Shawanigan Lake, a thirty-five mile trek that the combined troops made in little over two days from this city.

SCOUT TROOPS MADE REMARKABLE TREKS

ONE of many scout troops that enjoyed their Summer holidays in the open the trek of the Fairfield and St. Mary's troops to Shawanigan Lake, from August 9 to 19, serves to show what scouts accomplish along these lines. Under C. Frampton, 26 scouts of the Fairfield troop; five scouts of the St. Mary's troop under L. Sykes, and joined by one district scout officer, P. Wilkinson, five patrols in all, made up the party.

The scouts set out from town at 9:30 a.m. on August 9 and traversed the 35 miles to the top of Shawanigan Lake in little over two days. Two nights were spent in the woods en route. During that time rain that would have sent others to cover, fell. Despite the rain the patrols took turn at pulling their trek cart, with food, and blankets, and trudged the whole 35 miles without aid. Significant of scout training, the party ended the journey to the lake in a cheery mood and there dried out clothes wet with hours of heavy rain.

The eight-day camp that followed at the lake was noteworthy for two facts: the troops left town with some scouts able to swim, but many unable to do so, and returned at the end of the camp with only one member who could not take care of himself in the water. The second fact was that cooking by patrols proved by far the best method. Each patrol had its own cook and this duty was managed in rotation.

As if to make up for the poor weather experienced on the road the scouts enjoyed excellent weather in camp, and it is needless to state that the outing was a splendid success. Field tests, such as cooking and other matters, were held, and in the culinary department at least the scouts made rapid progress. Many "hikes" to the surrounding country were taken while in camp, wood lore coming into play upon such occasions.

One incident that stirred the camp to laughter was a certain game tracking episode, when a party of scouts were sent out to see if they could follow the trail of game. The trail was plain and the party made good going until bees put an end to the trail ranging by a sudden attack. Many stings were registered and the camp first aid kit found an unexpected sphere of usefulness.

It is interesting to note that the cost of the camp was 42 cents per boy per day for food, and a total cost of 50 cents a day per boy for all.

expense. The camp of the Fairfield and St. Mary's troops is typical of many scout camps this Summer. Units trekked out into the woods, cooked and maintained themselves in the open for weeks on end, and returned home healthier, happier and greatly benefited in every way. A scout camp is an object lesson in cheerful performance of duty, and ingenuity in all things.

WHAT WIRELESS STATIONS DO YOU NOW HEAR FROM?

IN response to many requests for a list of wireless stations which lie within audible range of this island and transmit press and concert matter, an attempt will be made to achieve this object through the co-operation of our radio enthusiasts. Many of our readers are keen radio operators and it should not be a difficult matter to compile a list that will be of use to all. If each would submit the name, call letters, and time of operation, together with approximate wave length of the stations now received it will be a simple matter of co-ordinating these to have a wide range of stations on record.

Particularly welcome would be details of long distance stations, and others remote from this island. For instance it is known that some are receiving from as far South as San Francisco, and as far East as Winnipeg, while many stations in the Eastern States are plainly audible here.

If our "radios" will co-operate in this matter the resulting list would prove highly serviceable for all concerned. Somewhere in the neighborhood of 200 receiving licenses are in active operation in this city alone, showing the growth of the popular science in modern days. Address all communications to "Wireless, The Times, Victoria, B. C."

AN OPEN CHARACTER

A shopkeeper had employed a man about a week and found him so lazy as to be utterly worthless. He discharged the man and was asked for a "character." Pondering a moment with pen in air the storekeeper smiled suddenly and wrote: "This will introduce Mr. X, who has worked for me one week. I am satisfied."

TOYS FURNITURE

HAND CRAFT PROJECTS

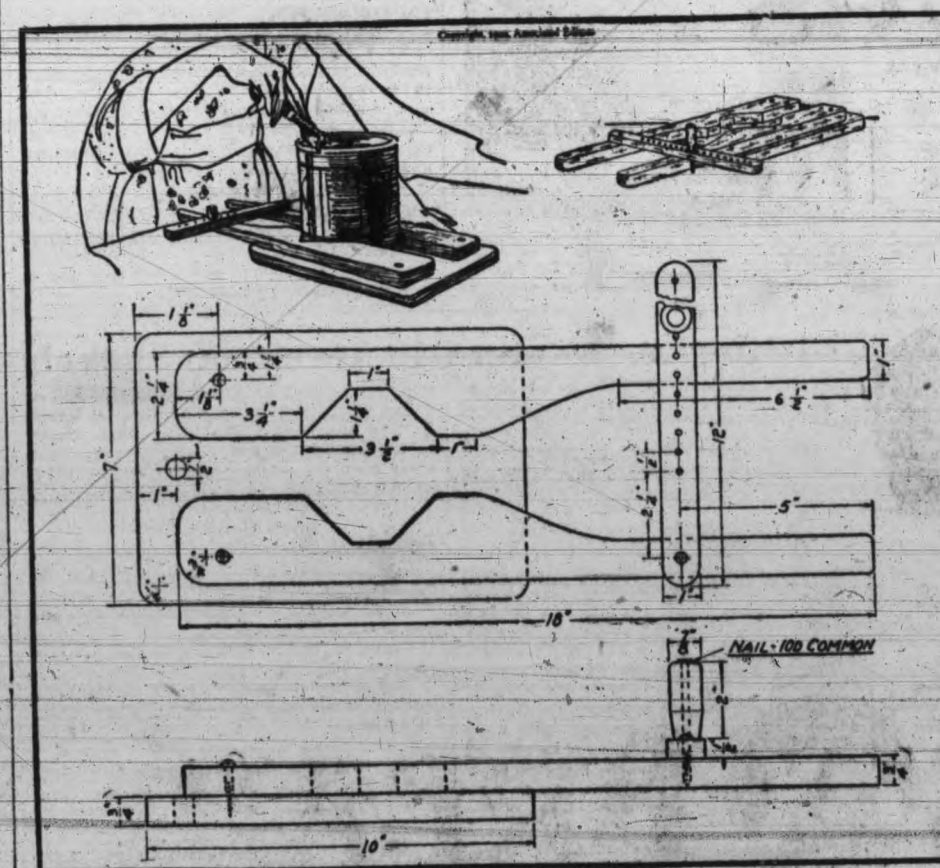

TOOL-CRAFT

BY FRANK I. SOLAR

Author of "How to Make a Tin-Can Holder"

HOUSEHOLD MECHANICS

HOW TO MAKE A TIN-CAN HOLDER

MATERIALS: Hard wood, stove bolts, a 10-penny nail, a 2-inch piece of broomstick.

In attempting to open a can at camp this Summer, Mrs. Solar cut her finger so badly that it will probably never be straight again. This led me to design a tin-can holder to help prevent similar accidents in other families.

To make this holder, first plane up any piece of wood, 4 in. x 7 in. x 10 in., for the base. Bore a small hole to hang up the device when it is not in use.

From a piece of hard wood, cut out the arms, with a coping saw. Round the handles, smoothing them by scraping with broken window glass. The strip used as a tightener should also be of hard wood, with a row of holes to fit a 10-penny nail, and another hole in the end to fit the stove bolt with which it is fastened to one arm. Each arm is fastened to the base with a stove bolt.

The knob, which holds the nail that is used as a stopper, can be made of a piece of soft wood or broom handle. The nail should fit in the knob tightly, so that it will not fall out whenever the tightener is released.

To operate, separate the arms, set the can in place, squeeze the arms, and insert the nail in a hole that will cause the can to be clamped tightly. Open the can with an ordinary can-opener. The leverage on the clamping arms is so great that the can is slightly dented with but very little pressure.

Customer: The chair is very pretty indeed, but I want one with three legs to fit in a corner. Furniture Dealer: Well, madam, I will saw you leg off.

FRIEND OR FOE?

Being Further Adventures of "Ben" and "Tom Seeley," Contributed By Mrs. Harrison Eke

Advancing one step and slipping back two, he urged Tom on. The train could be heard thundering its way on in the distance, they could hear the shrill whistle of its approach. Terrified Tom turned to implore Ben to hasten; but Ben had rolled to the foot of the bank in his attempt to get up beside Tom.

"What are you sitting down there for, loony? Can't you hear the train coming?" shouted Tom angrily. He then turned quickly and continued his way up, reaching the top just as the freight train came in view. Nearing the animal, he gave it a savage kick. Thus disturbed, it slowly got to its feet and impudently flicked its tail in Tom's face. The train came nearer and nearer, and when only a short distance away it sent forth another shrill warning. The cow, now startled, stumbled clumsily off the track just as the train dashed by, continuing its way down the bank on the other side, and almost colliding with the owners of the voices heard by the boys a short while before.

"Catch her," Tom heard someone shout. He waited until the train passed, then he crossed the tracks and looked down. Two boys were seated at the foot of the bank, undoubtedly on their way to Mac's Lake. Ben now reached the top but was too breathless to speak for the moment.

"Loony," cried Tom once more, "why didn't you come and help?" "Sorry," Tom, apologized. Ben breathing heavily, "I did try to get up to you, but I slipped and fell."

Tom would have laughed had Ben not looked so serious.

"Did you hurt yourself?" he asked, smothering an inclination to laugh.

"Not replied Ben, following Tom's gaze at the foot of the bank. "Why, there's Billy Wilson and Alan Joyce. Wonder where they are going?"

"Lo, Alan," shouted Ben, now fully recovered from his climb, "on your way to Mac's?" Alan Joyce looked up in surprise as he heard the shout. He took off his cap and waved.

"Where you bound for?" shouted back Alan. "Mac's," returned Ben.

"Good," answered Ben, "we'll meet you near Wrigley's Farm."

The two boys quickly turned and slid down the bank on the other side, and jumped into the foot. For an hour or more they rode along the ridge of the railway bank. The hot noon-day sun now striking full upon them, they presently took off their coats.

"That's better," said Tom, folding his coat neatly and placing it on the seat.

"Say, Tom, can you get at another pie before you sit down again?"

Tom smiled broadly. "Have you entered a pie-eating contest?"

"No," replied Ben. "It passes the time away."

"Then you can 'pass the time away' thinking you're eating a pie until supper time," said Tom authoritatively, "or we won't have enough to last the trip."

Tom, being the eldest, felt he was responsible for what happened. Apart from this he wished to stay the full time and not be obliged to return owing to lack of provisions. Ben forgot his imaginary hunger as he spied another flock of ducks flying over his head. He and Tom kept up an argument as to whether they were "Canvas-backs," "Pin-tails" or "Mallards" and not until they met the other boys did they cease their argument.

"Hello, kids,"

"Lo, Alan," returned Ben, "where are we camping to-night?"

"Right here," Ben, replied Alan. "We went over to Wrigley's house," went on Alan, "for water. Nobody answered so we helped ourselves."

"Wrigley's sick," Ben informed the boys. "Mamie Wilson told me so yesterday."

"Joe's home," burst forth Billy Wilson, thinking this piece of news was of greater importance.

"Home from where?" queried Tom.

"College," returned Billy with a proud toss of his head. "We may meet him," he added,

PHOTOGRAPHIC CONTEST

DUE to the large volume of entries that have to be judged in connection with the Photographic Contest which has been running in this page since July 8 the awards for the finals will not be available until next week. The contest is now closed and all those who so requested will be in receipt of their entries shortly. The judges are now at work on the closing awards and will have their decision ready in time for next Saturday's issue.

"he said he was going duck-shooting."

"Lummie," cried Tom, "then we'll keep clear of him. We don't want to meet no 'high-brows,' do we, Ben?"

"No, sircce," agreed Ben.

Billy's face fell.

"Suppose we happen to meet him," chimed in Alan Joyce, noticing the look of disappointment on Billy's face, "you'll be chummy and say 'How do,' won't you, Ben?"

"Sure," replied Ben, "we'll say 'How do,' that is, if he is friendly."

Towards evening they pitched their tent and prepared their evening meal, which, when ready, was eaten with relish in a very short time. Night came on and the boys settled for a chat before bedtime. The moon afforded ample light through the open tent flap. It suddenly occurred to Tom in the midst of a thrilling experience related by Alan Joyce, that more water was needed for the morning.

"Will you go over to Wrigley's and rustle a pail of water, Ben," said Tom, "while I get the blankets out." "Sure," answered Ben, picking up a pail, and swinging it on his arm, he left the tent. Tom, in a joyous mood, began to sing, but was suddenly interrupted by a piercing shriek. Ben came rushing back and would have fallen to the ground had not the boys caught him. White-faced and trembling, he regained his footing.

"I saw something," he exclaimed in terrified tones when at last he found his voice. Tom stared, wondering if Ben had suddenly taken leave of his senses. "It's true, Tom," went on Ben, "the honest truth!" Tom gazed at Ben with a puzzled frown on his face.

"There you are, Ben," he said, "what did you see? If you ate too much pie?" "That you'd see strange things, didn't she?" There was anger in Tom's tones as he went on. "And now I suppose you've seen a teeny weeny squirrel and thought it was a great big cougar."

"No, Tom," Ben's voice was almost a whisper. "It was Sherlock Holmes. I know it was. I saw him." Tom's fear for Ben's reason became a certainty, while the other boys looked on perplexed.

Pilot Whales Are Useful to Man

WITH the appearance of the school of pilot or caaing whales in Saanich Arm it is interesting to note something of the life of these marine monsters. In these parts the pilot whale is more commonly called the "blackfish," from the fact that it is black almost entirely, with but a slender strip of white on the under side.

Off the Faroe Islands, where the pilot whales are perhaps best known, the mammals grow to a length of 40 feet, but average about 20 feet in the ordinary school. They travel together in the wake of an old fighter. As many as 200 frequently have been seen in a school. The leader sets the pace and his flock follow him blindly, for weal or woe.

Opinion of naturalists differ greatly as to the temperament of the pilot whale. Some say that it is fierce and will fight when approached; others holding that it is tame, poorly off in a fight with other whales or mankind, and indeed lets itself be killed. Some cases of pilot whales attacking a boat after having been fired on have been reported in these waters; but by far the greater number of reports show that the pilot whale is a peaceful fellow and content to let well enough alone.

The pilot whale is one of toothed variety of the large family of cetaceans, though the teeth are purely incidental and often do not break free from the gums at all. The members of a school are faithful to each other, and when one is wounded the others will stay with it, even at the risk of their own lives.

By environment and custom the inhabitants of the Faroe Islands have come to regard the pilot whale as their harvest, and annually large numbers of these are captured. The practice is to drive the leader into shallow water, when he will be followed by the entire school. As many as 200 to 300 whales are often secured in this manner.

From the body of the whale the natives get train oil, and some parts of the flesh are cured like bacon. The frozen meat, comparable to beef, is eaten extensively in season.

It is interesting to note that the pilot whale seems to follow the smaller salmon, or grilse, arriving annually at about the same period of the year. They are also fond of squid, calamaries, cuttle fish and herring, as well as many small varieties of shoaling fish. This season in Saanich Arm salmon fishers have seen several small schools of the "blackfish" hunting grilse in their own particular way.

LLOYD GEORGE VISITED CANADA MANY YEARS AGO

He Envied Canadians Then Their Great Opportunity, Untrammelled by Old Laws and Prejudices.

By J. LAWLER.

PREMIER LLOYD GEORGE has been so busily engaged in holding together and patching up Europe for the past six or seven years that he has not been able to cross the Atlantic, and a good many people imagine that he never saw this country. But Mr. Lloyd George once had a good look at Western Canada, and learned more in a month's stay than some people learn in a lifetime.

The youngest and most inconspicuous member of a parliamentary party which toured the west twenty-five years ago, he spent a day or two in Winnipeg, and for two weeks visited the little towns on the prairies.

It was noticed at that time that he almost alone in the party broke away from the view that Canada was a very young, raw colony, and should copy English methods as soon as possible.

There had been a heavy snowstorm the day before Mr. Lloyd George's arrival at Winnipeg. He stood in the rotunda of the old Leland Hotel, clad in the tourist's Norfolk jacket and knickerbockers, and watched the jingling sleighs go by filled with country produce, and the busy throng of buyers and sellers in the market square opposite. "In Britain," he remarked, "snow, generally speaking, means expense and misery; here it means economy and comfort. Out on the prairies last week farmers could not get their crops to market because of muddy roads. Now, with the snow, the roads are perfect and business is brisk. Look at that market." That was a thing, he said, he could never have understood without experiencing it.

The young member from Wales launched into what would now be considered a characteristic dissertation upon the folly of flitting visitors telling Canadians how they should conduct their affairs. Canada, instead of being at a disadvantage, as compared with the old land was incomparably better off, because untrammelled by a thousand old laws, customs and prejudices she could go ahead and build forthwith without being delayed by the necessity of pulling down the old, and he envied Canadians their great opportunity.

Lloyd George.

Mainly About People

Would Pan Off the Wreck On a Methodist Parson

HON. DR. TOLMIE, who has declined the leadership of the Conservative party in British Columbia, was a veterinary surgeon before branching out as a farmer and stock-breeder.

Hon. Dr. Tolmie.

One day a tall, lean individual called him to treat a sick mare. The doctor examined the animal and gave the owner a large bottle of medicine, saying: "Now, friend, if this does no good, I would advise you to sell the mare to a Methodist preacher." The tall, lean individual sighed and said: "I am a Methodist preacher myself."

Entertaining a Poet Unawares in the Wilds

CANADIAN literary critics have described Bliss Carman, in the fullest sense the Canadian lyrical poet, as a "beautiful pagan fleeing down the ways of life," and as being "content to sing of gypsies and vagabondage."

It was a strange vagabond meeting between Carman and T. Morris Longstreth, the author, in the Laurentian Wilderness in Northern Quebec that the latter describes. Carman, at that time, was unknown to the writer of prose.

Bliss Carman.

"Your cook-fire made such a contented looking picture against the dark, you don't mind if I sit and watch you two?"

"This remark came from a tall, broad-shouldered, big-nosed, open-countenanced man who lifted one moccasin-shod foot out of his canoe, and then the other, deliberately, but not ungracefully. We should have thought him thirty, but for a sort of shy magnetism which goes with youth. Our curiosity was piqued."

"We talked in the firelight, first of the mountains, then of the stars, and by and by, reached poetry. 'I have a cousin down in New Brunswick you may have heard of, Charles G. D. Roberts,' said the stranger. 'Now, there's a poet for you—a man who is at his best on a big theme in nature, and worth quoting at times like this, if one has the memory.' Pressed further, he quoted the names of several Canadian poets of note, and then one of the listeners said: 'You left one name from the list. Isn't Bliss Carman a Canadian?'"

"Yes, but one of the wanderers, the wapiti, and little known."

"I didn't realize he was a Canadian, though everybody knows his name," said the listener.

"His name, perhaps," said the other, dryly, "but his work, hardly; that is, what counts. I can scarcely recall a dozen poems by him, and I am interested in poetry."

"I'd give a hand to meet that man Carman," said one of the listeners.

"He is not much to meet," said the stranger, "a shy and awkward old bachelor, who confines his conversation to the business of the day. I know him or did when we were younger, and still occasionally get glimpses of him. He is a whimsical, pondering sort of giant, New-Brunswick born, but forced to hunt his bread in the states. He was starting off for Montreal the other day on a lecture tour and vowing when he got it over that he'd never go again where he couldn't get in moccasins."

"They talked for hours, and once the stranger said he was trying to remember something, and wrote for fifteen minutes on envelopes and things from every pocket. When he had gone they picked up some letter paper, also scribbled over, and found on the letter-head:

"Bliss Carman,
New Canaan,
Conn."

The Famous Dress Suit Worn by Karl and Jack

JACK Ramsden, Liberal M.P.P. for Southwest Toronto, and Karl Homuth, Labor representative for South Waterloo, are, physically, two of the biggest men in the Ontario Legislature. The best of friends, both in the House and outside, neither of them is averse to cracking a joke at the expense of the other.

Arm in arm, the pair made their way down the corridors of the parliament buildings, one night last session, to attend the speaker's annual dinner. Karl was attired in the conventional "soup and fish," while Jack wore an ordinary business suit.

"Case of necessity," he explained. "There's only one dress suit in town that will fit us two—and Karl beat me to it."

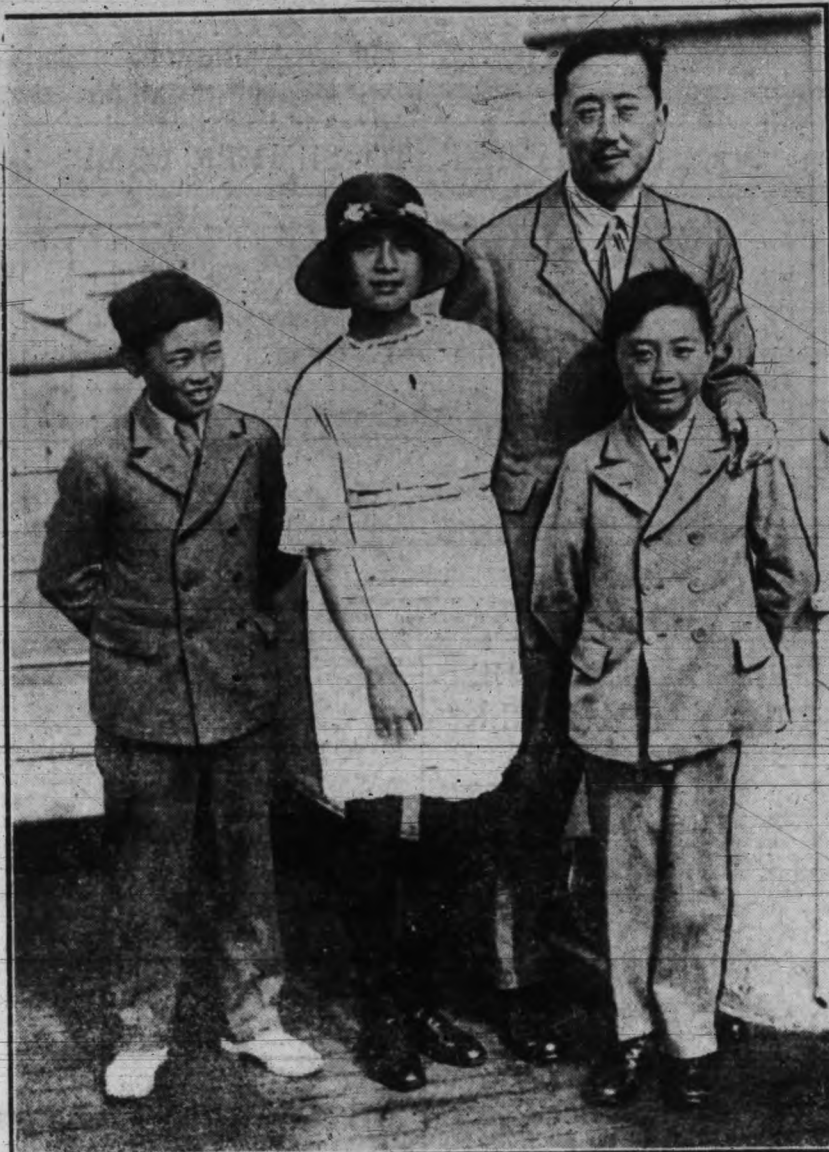

Taking the Bun

DEAN INGE, the gloomy dean of St. Paul's, is said to have met with an adventure lately that made him laugh.

Feeling hungry in a train, he beckoned a paperboy at a station, gave him a shilling, and asked him to fetch a Bath bun, adding that he might have one for himself.

The boy departed, and presently returned munching a bun.

"Here's your change, sir," he said; "there was only one bun left."

The Szes Come Over the Sea

SAO-KE ALFRED SZE (with the accent on the middle syllable), the Chinese minister at Washington, is just as human and benignant as he looks, with his young family upon their return to these shores. His English is a joy to listen to; he came to Washington, of course, as a high school boy, and was graduated from Cornell. Sze, being a man of superlative mental capacity, unimpeachable character, and the highest idealism, was welcomed as Chinese minister to London during the war, and at Versailles.

Escaping by a Miracle from a Motor Wreck, Mr. Bowser Vouches Against Oliver's Roads

Through Inky Darkness the B.C. Leader of the Opposition, Tattered and Caked With Mud, Plodded for Three Miles to a Political Meeting, Arriving an Hour Late.

By BRUCE HUTCHISON.

IN British Columbia there are two sides to every question of importance. They are: (1) John Oliver, (2) Bill Bowser.

Mr. Oliver is the premier, and Mr. Bowser frankly hopes to be; but just now, after leading one government, he is busy guiding the conservative opposition. They are worthy opponents and crowded galleries usually watch them as they wrestle in the legislature every year. But it is on the hustings that they are at their best. In front of a cheering or hissing audience, their worst enemies admit they can take advantage of the slightest opportunity, the smallest weakness in an argument, to press home their points. And thereby hangs a tale.

In an automobile loaded down with politicians and newspapermen, Mr. Bowser was pushing into a certain small village where he was scheduled to deliver a speech in the last general provincial election. Darkness had fallen and the road was deep with mud. Mr. Bowser frowned in silence and the newspapermen said wicked things. Suddenly the car jumped the ruts, swayed over the road's edge, hung dizzily over space, and rolling over, crashed down the embankment into some trees. Miraculously enough no one was hurt, but it was three miles to town and the evening's meeting was scheduled to start in five minutes.

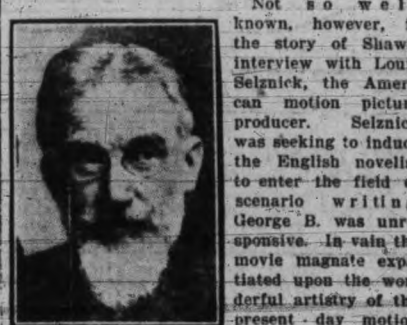

The meeting waited patiently, but an hour after the local orators had started the audience was getting restless. When the chairman had reached the verge of nervous prostration, suddenly a ragged, dirty figure strode upon the platform. His clothes were torn, his boots caked in an inch of mud, his face smeared. The chairman was about to order him out when he realized there was no mistaking the overhanging brow and huge chin which the cartoonists love to draw—it was Mr. Bowser.

And Mr. Bowser was quite equal to the situation. Without introduction or apology he said, "Please keep your seats, ladies and gentlemen. Don't be alarmed. You may all be in my position yourself at any time if you allow John Oliver to build your roads any longer!"

Listening to Rapture in Terms of Shekels

OF course you have probably heard George Bernard Shaw's explanation of his habit of talking to himself.

"I always like to talk to a clever man," says G. B., "and I like equally to have a clever man talk to me."

Bernard Shaw.

Not so well known, however, is the story of Shaw's interview with Louis Seignick, the American motion picture producer. Seignick was seeking to induce the English novelist to enter the field of scenario writing. George B. was unresponsive. In vain the movie magnate expatiated upon the wonderful artistry of the present-day motion picture; of the shades of beauty and expression, lacking in the written book or the spoken drama, which could be achieved upon the screen.

"The trouble, Seignick," Mr. Shaw finally summed up, "is that you're looking at this thing solely from the point of view of art, while I'm looking at it from the commercial angle."

They Cannot Lie

ENGLAND'S coast-line is 2,200 miles long. There are 260,000 women farmers in the United States.

There were 35,122 applications for new patents in Britain last year.

Grease for train wheels cost one railway company about $650,000 a year.

Web to the length of two and a quarter miles has been drawn from the body of a single spider.

A Medical Embargo

"MOTHER, is it true that an apple a day keeps the doctor away?"

"Yes, Jimmie. Why?"

"Cause if it is, I kept about ten doctors away this morning." —Tit-Bits.

A Comfy Snooze-House, Not for Sir Joseph

A WELL-KNOWN lawyer in Toronto has a particular brand of easy chair of which he is extremely fond when he has a magazine to read and a pipe to smoke.

"I want to tell you about that chair," he said to a caller who had never seen one like it. "You may not think that a man's choice in chairs has much to do with his success in life. But this one proves that it has."

"Well, it is a good chair and you are a successful man," said the caller, as he wriggled about in the cavities of the chair.

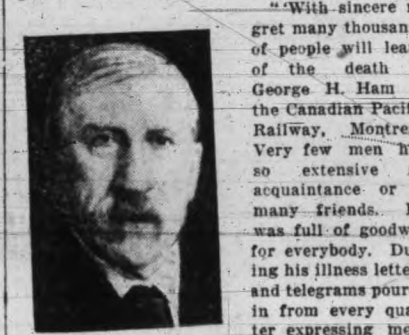

"That's not the point at all. The fact is that when I got the chair the only one like it in Canada was bought by Mr. Joseph Flavell. He tried it a few times and gave it up. No, he said, if I'm ever going to amount to much in the world, I can't spend much of my time in a comfortable snooze-house like that." He sent the chair away. I kept mine. That's the point about that chair."

Sir Jos. Flavell.

Greatly Exaggerated Was Col. Ham's Obituary

M R. GEO. H. HAM, the famous Canadian wit and raconteur, says that false reports about a person are never true. "For instance, sixteen years ago—the Charlottetown, P. E. I., Guardian unblushingly reported my death, and while the reading of the obituary notice was not uninteresting, it was not altogether self-satisfying. It reads as follows:

Geo. H. Ham

"With sincere regret many thousands of people will learn of the death of George H. Ham of the Canadian Pacific Railway, Montreal. Very few men had so extensive an acquaintance or so many friends. He was full of goodwill for everybody. During his illness letters and telegrams poured in from every quarter expressing most sincere desires for his recovery, but it had been otherwise ordered. He leaves a memory fragrant with the kindnesses that thousands have received at his hands."

"Of course, I didn't demand a retraction, but when Mr. J. B. McCready, the editor, was seen during my visit to Charlottetown, a year or two later, he was willing to make one. Finally Mac and I agreed that it would not be advisable to spoil a good news item, just because it wasn't altogether correct. So we let it go at that, though I have always maintained it wasn't true. "But to this day, the paragraph, neatly framed in becoming black, lies before me on my desk, and when anything goes wrong, and I feel down in the mouth, I pick it up and read it and say to myself: 'Oh, well, things could easily be worse; this might have been true,' which is some consolation."

Geordie Was Averse To Being a Cannibal

M R. HOMER WATSON, of Doon, Canada's distinguished landscape painter, who usually spends his summers in Great Britain, narrates as the most comical of his observations the following:

Homer Watson.

On one occasion, driving with a friend down a country road in Scotland, Watson's companion described in the distance, coming towards them, a local character known to all the countryside as "Daft Geordie." Geordie made a scant living, having but scanty wit, by working round among the farmers, seldom long at any one place.

"Where awa, Geordie?" began

Watson's friend as they came up with him.

"I've left you man," replied Geordie, pointing over his shoulder to a distant farmstead.

"Why, Geordie?"

"Weel, I'll tell ye. I dinna like the fare. Last summer an auld coo de'd, and we had salt beef for ever sae lang. About New Year's an auld soo de'd, and we had salt pork for ever sae lang. Ma mither's mither de'd the morn; an he sent me till the toon for a bushel o' salt, an I'm nae gainin' back."

—Tit-Bits.

Took All the Poor Beggar Had

AUGUSTINE BIRRELL, in his early days at the bar, often had many poor clients. On one occasion the defendant was so poor that Birrell offered to handle his case for nothing. Birrell won the case, and the grateful client sent him fifteen shillings. In order not to hurt the man's feelings Mr. Birrell accepted the fee, but a fellow lawyer reproached him for doing so.

"Don't you know," said the fellow lawyer, "that it is unprofessional to take less than gold?"

"Well," said Mr. Birrell, seriously, "I took all the poor beggar had. You don't consider that unprofessional, do you?"

THE VISION OF PEACE ABSORBS LORD ROBERT

He is the Isolated Idealist of the British Commons Even to a Comic Extreme.

NO one can understand Lord Robert Cecil who doesn't grasp this primal fact about him: that he is peculiarly and essentially English. He is "peculiarly" English, because the type which he represents has very nearly disappeared from the House of Commons. His isolation in modern British politics is due to the fact that he is an English idealist.

One of the most saddening sights in the world is to see an idealist enter the House of Commons. As a rule, he struggles manfully for a session or two, trying hard to be independent. Eventually, finding that independence "cuts no ice," he joins the great majority.

Lord Robert Cecil started as another kind of idealist. He did honestly believe that salvation lay with the Conservatives. Then he suffered a nasty jar, and has plowed his lonely furrow ever since.

But—and herein lies his weakness as well as his strength—he remains an idealist. He is the leading spokesman in England for the League of Nations, and the ideal he has set himself to achieve absorbs him, heart and soul.

Everything he thinks, says and does is dominated now by that ever-present vision of permanent, universal peace on earth. If the vision were less noble one would call it an obsession, for it is sometimes carried to comic extremes. It affects his habits, his manners, his personal apparel—and especially his headgear. Indeed, not long ago, during a debate near Hitchin, a youthful constituent suddenly sprang the following question on him: "Where did you get that hat?" Lord Robert couldn't remember.

He will tell you, if you care to ask him, that his hobby is golf. "But it is nothing of the sort. His hobby is the League of Nations. True, he sallies forth with a bag of clubs and a box of golf balls—all of which he would lose in a round if he hadn't a caddy—but the entire outfit is merely useful as camouflage for a debate on the League of Nations, and doesn't impose for a moment on any of his friends."

"Who won?" asked an innocent fellow-member on one occasion as Lord Robert and his opponent entered the club from the last green.

"Good gracious!" came the latter's reply, "I've clean forgotten!"

"So have I!" chimed in Lord Robert, "but I've a kind of feeling we started all square."

Discoverer of the Century

SCIENTISTS of the United States are heralding the discovery of twin suns many times bigger than our own "Old Sol" as the greatest discovery of the age. Dr. J. S. Plaskett, who found these two new heavenly bodies, which are 20,000 times brighter than our own sun, is a Canadian, the director of the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory at Victoria, B.C. It was by means of a 72-inch reflector telescope that he saw fifty-two quadrillions of miles through space.

Mr. Drury "Listens In"

IT was a few days after Premier Drury had been selected to head the U. F. O. party when, on the train from Toronto to his home at Crown Hill he overheard an animated conversation between two fellow passengers concerning himself. A reporter was accompanying the premier-elect.

The fellow passengers evidently did not know Mr. Drury by sight, for one of them, seated not more than a few feet distant, vigorously contended it was a joke on the province to permit a farmer to direct the management of a province like Ontario. Drury would not last—not for one session of the house.

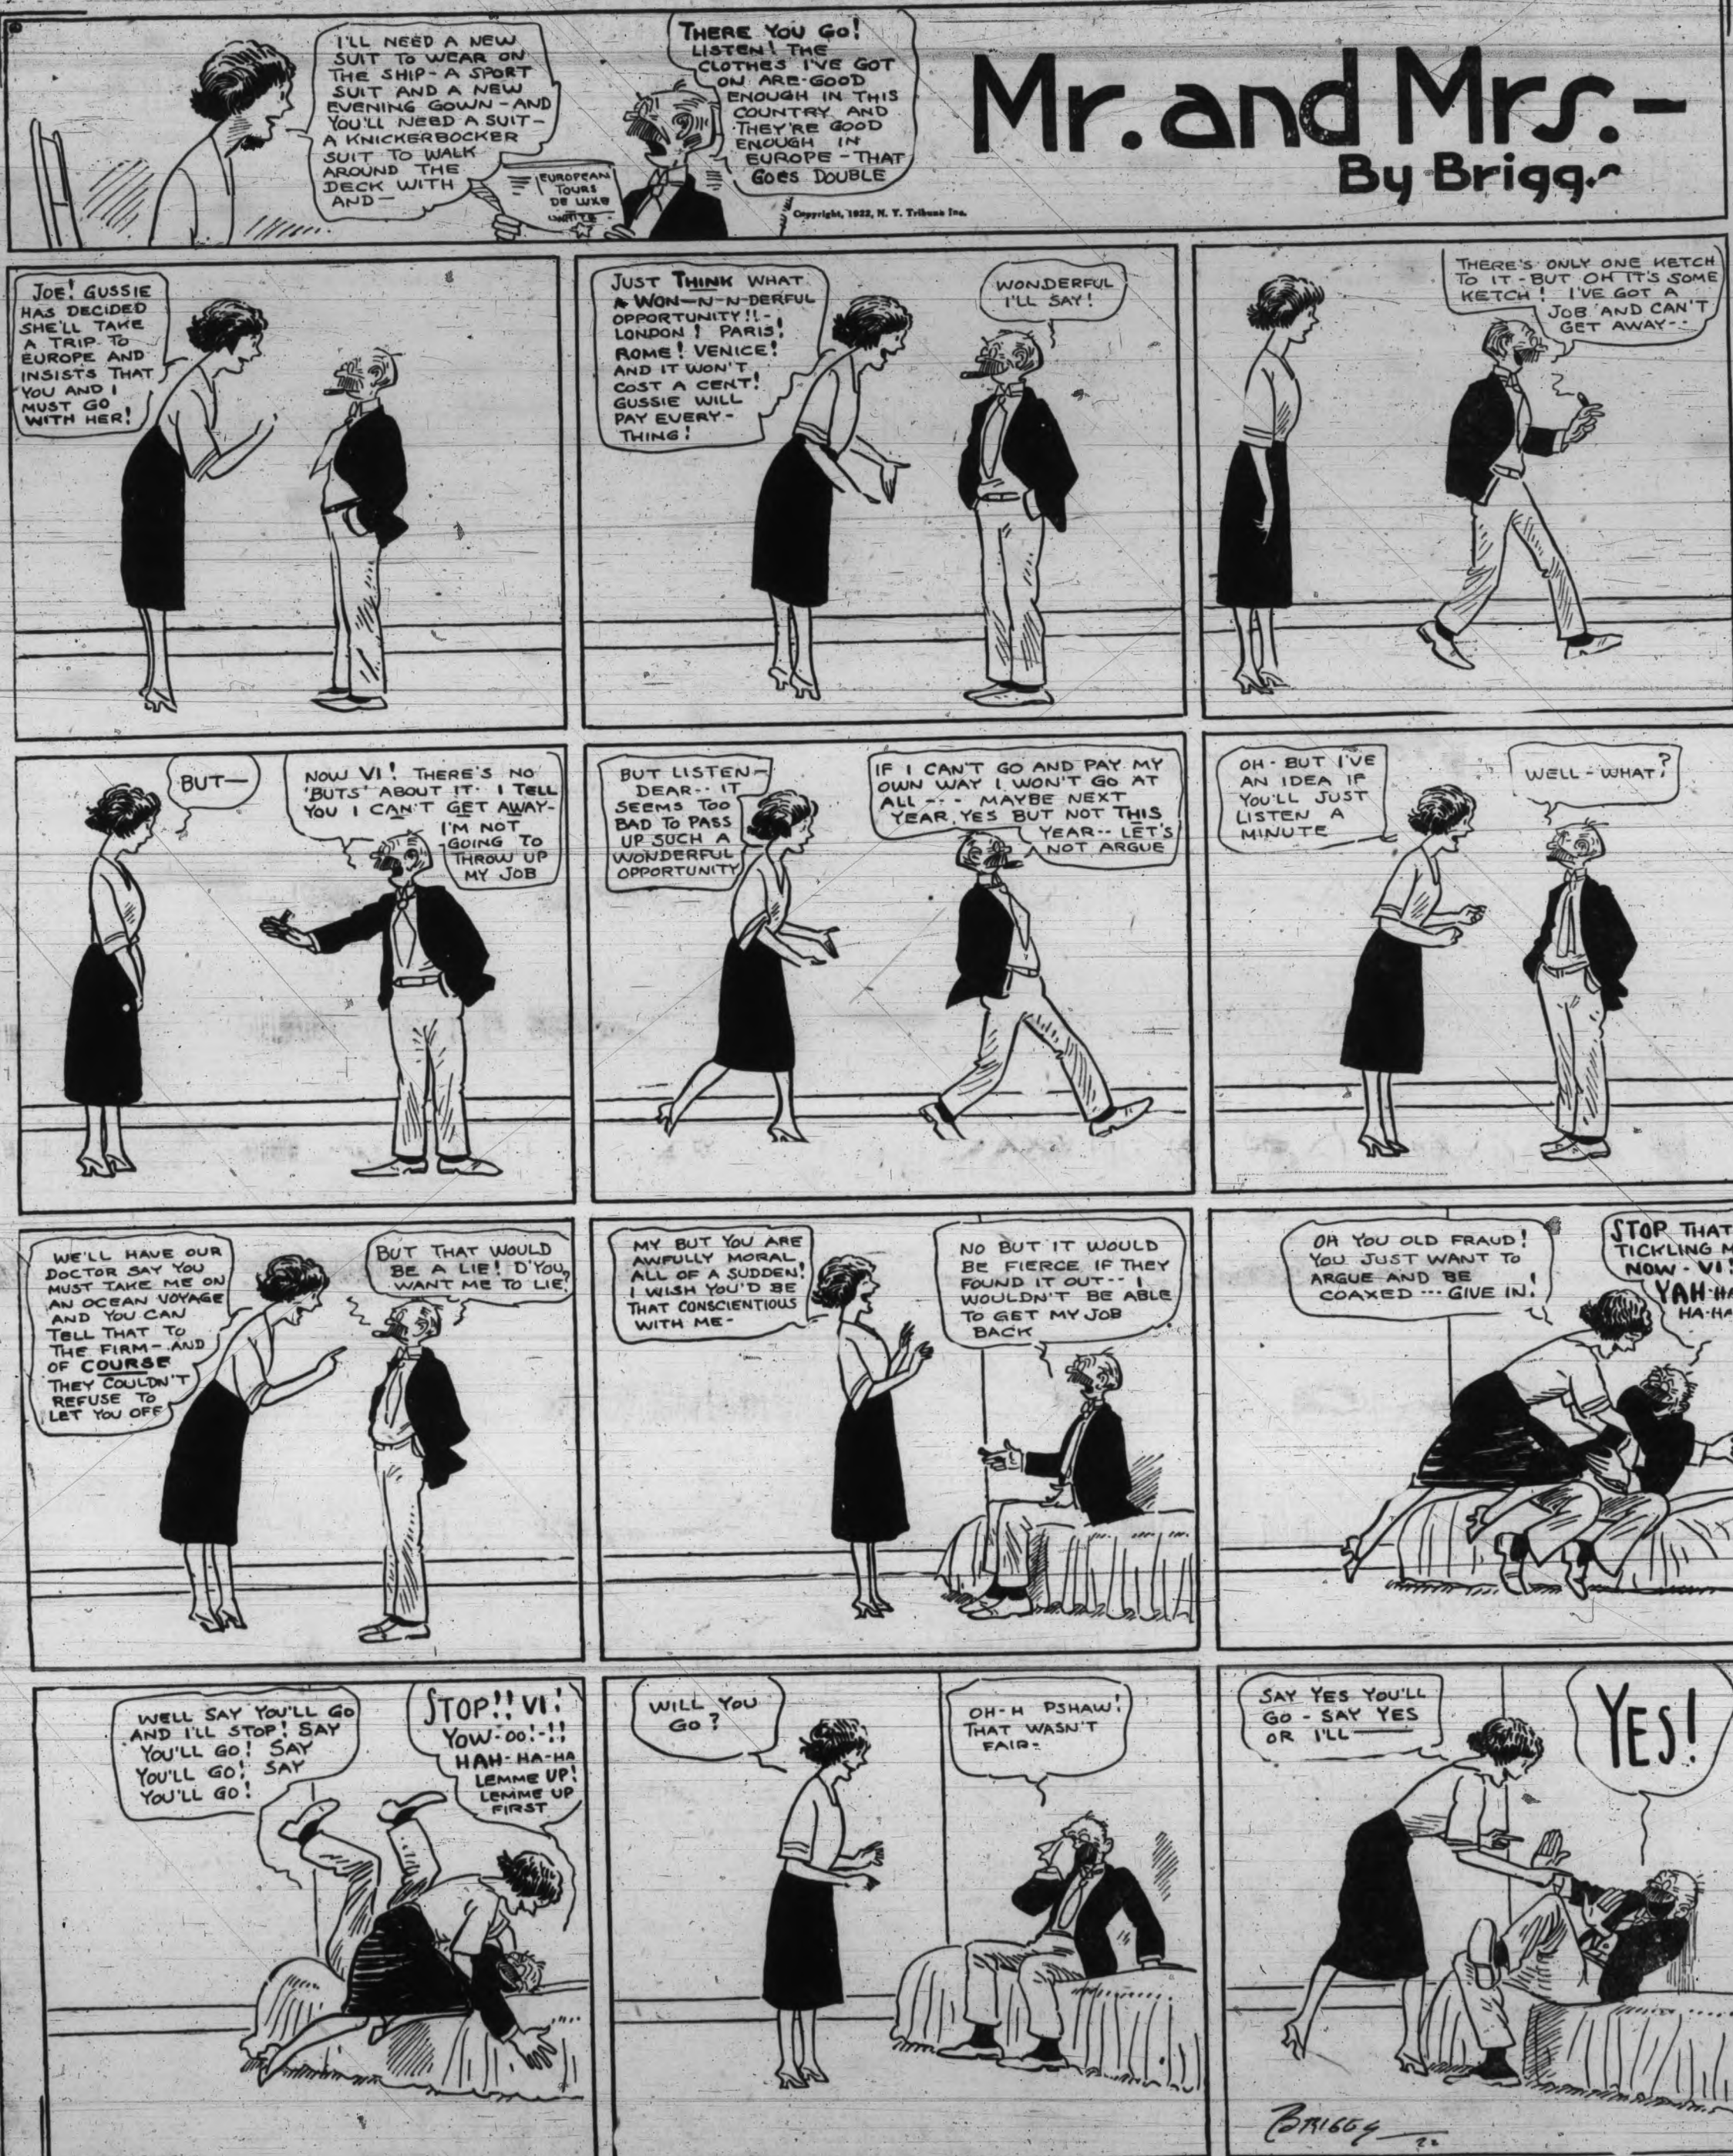

The other passenger praised the premier-designate. The farmer M. P. P.'s knew what they were doing. Drury must be all right or they never would have him. In fact, the Drury booster continued, the farmers of Ontario had selected one of the cleverest, most learned, tactful, respected men in the entire province.

The premier listened in silence. Then, smiling and blushing faintly, he turned to the reporter: "Wouldn't you like to go into the smoker? This is too much."
